STATE LOSES FIGHT FOR RECOVERY OF RATE OVERCHARGES

Supreme Court Sustains Railroad's Demurrer in Test Suit Involving $24,000,000

BARKER IS REBUKED

Opinion Declares Attorney-General's Harangue in Brief Had No Place in Case.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 29.—The Missouri Supreme Court on banc today denied the right of Attorney-General Barker to sue railroads to compel them to refund all monies collected by them from passengers and shippers, during the pendency of the McPherson injunction, in excess of the amount authorized by the 2-cent passenger and maximum freight laws. The decision will throw out of court the suits against 12 trunk lines to recover $24,000,000.

The opinion, written by Judge Graves, rebuked the Attorney-General for the sensational brief which he filed in the case, and copies of which he gave to newspapers. Referring to the Attorney-General's brief, Judge Graves wrote: "Questions of law which are at issue are the only things in which the courts are interested, and harangues in which popular prejudice is sought, have no place here. This is a case for the law, and the law alone shall decide it. We shall not be personal and therefore designate no briefs, but the one upon which the shoe fits will recognize the justice of these observations. We pass now to the merits of the case."

"We have theorists," Judge Graves continued, "who imagine that property rights should be swept away by popular clamor, much of which clamor is of their own creation. This is a case for the law, and the law alone shall decide it. The doctrines of theorists have no place in a case where life, limb or property is at stake."

The Supreme Court's decision was handed down in the Chicago & Alton case, one of the 12 suits which Attorney-General Barker filed against trunk lines shortly after the United States Supreme Court, about a year ago, upheld the constitutionality of the 2-cent fare in Missouri. Circuit Judge J. W. Davis and Marshall, Mo., has sustained a demurrer filed by the Chicago & Alton. Several other circuit judges sustained similar demurrers in other suits, and Barker appealed the Chicago & Alton case to the Supreme Court in the belief that it was the strongest of all its cases.

The railroads, after the Missouri Legislature passed a 2-cent fare law in 1907, obtained an injunction from Federal Judge Smith McPherson. The State carried the case to the United States Supreme Court and won. During the pendency of the injunction the railroads charged rates in excess of 2 cents a mile, and in excess of the stipulated maximum freight rates.

In the case decided here today the principal question involved was whether Barker, as Attorney-General, had a right to bring a suit on behalf of individual shippers and passengers to recover a civil liability on the part of the railroads. The Supreme Court holds that he had no such right.

Judge Bond Dissented. In the opinion, which was concurred in by all members of the Court except Judge Bond, who dissented, the Supreme Court holds that the Attorney-General has no right to use the time and money of all the taxpayers to bring suits for certain private individuals.

Another question involved was the $10,000 bond, which the Federal Court required of the railroads when they enjoined the enforcement of the 2-cent fare law, covers their full measure of liability. The Supreme Court suggests that the Attorney-General investigate the law on this point and then file a separate suit to recover the bond. The Missouri Supreme Court held that the Attorney-General has no right to use the time and money of all the taxpayers to bring suits for certain private individuals.

Attorney-General Barker filed suit against each trunk line for a blanket sum of $2,000,000, on the theory that the courts would allow the State to investigate the railroad books to determine exactly what overcharges had been made during the litigation.

Sensational Charges in Brief. Attorney-General Barker's brief in the Chicago & Alton case, which he filed in the Supreme Court March 23, was replete with sensational charges and denunciatory sarcasm. He referred to all trunk lines in Missouri as common criminals and said that if their contention was upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court the Federal Court which enjoined the enforcement of the 2-cent law will be branded as "a common stick-up man, who holds the gun on the victim, while his pal, the other participant in the operation, ransacks the pocket of his victim and takes what he will."

JUDGE MAKES UNDERTAKER STOP AUTO HEARSE FROM CHUGGING

Juryman and Deputy Finally Have to Push Machine Away to Please Clerk.

Judge Ben Clark of the Court of Criminal Correction was irritated this morning. An automobile engine was running in the court yard of the Municipal Courts building. Judge Clark frowned at the chugging of the engine. He ordered the sheriff to go out and bring in the car. The sheriff hauled Lawrence Muller of the Mullen Undertaking Co., 405 St. Louis avenue into court.

"You are disturbing the court with the machine of yours," Judge Clark said. "The machine must stop it immediately. Get that machine out of there without making any noise."

Mullen had come to the Coroner's office with an automobile hearse. When he started his engine it began chugging louder than before. He turned off the power and appealed to the Coroner for help. A deputy coroner and six jury men went into the court yard and pushed the heavy automobile hearse outside in order that Judge Clark might continue his deliberations in court without further irritation.

GERMANS USE BURNING FLUID TO MELT WIRE BARRIERS

Entanglements on Warsaw Front Thus Mowed Down as With a Scythe.

WARSAW, June 29.—The use of burning fluids by the Germans on this front is apparently restricted to the purpose of melting down barbed wire entanglements, for which this method is efficacious.

The equipment consists of a metal cylinder filled with a mixture of benzine and kerosene at a pressure of 75 pounds to the inch. A turn of the handle liberates a jet of burning fluid 15 feet in length, which fuses a path through the entanglements, cutting down all wire obstruction as with a scythe.

SAILOR DESCRIBES SUBMARINE RAID IN SEA OF MARMORA

"Saw a Big Gunboat Outside Constantinople and Gave Her a 'Tin Fish,'" Briton Says.

FIRED UPON CAVALRY

Were Cheered Upon Their Return and "It Was Good to Hear."

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, June 29.—The Chronicle publishes the following account, by one of the crew, of the exploit of the British submarine E11, which Lieutenant-Commander Nasmyth received the Victoria Cross and each of his men the distinguished service medal:

"We left Imbros one morning about 3 and steamed toward the Dardanelles, and dived as day was breaking, and well, got through the narrows O.K., arrived on the other side and saw two battleships. We were getting ready to torpedo one of 'em when they spotted us, opened fire on us and nipped, bunched and ran away."

"We then journeyed on for a mile or two and then went to the bottom and rested until about 8 p. m., when we came up. It was dark, so we looked around. Nothing in sight. We broke the surface and entered the Sea of Marmora and bumped around for a few days without sighting a thing until Sunday morning, when we were diving outside of Constantinople and saw a big gunboat, and at 6:30 a. m. we gave her a 'tin fish' and at 6:30 a. m. she was no more; but before she sank she was listing over, they opened fire on us. The second shot hit our periscope and 'done it in.' That gunner must have been a cool card, eh?"

Yankee Correspondent Told to Bluff. "The following Friday morning I came to the surface alongside her and told her to stop. She stopped, and the men were so anxious to get clear that one boat capsized. No lives were lost. There was a Yankee correspondent aboard who tried to bluff; no good, though, 'cos an officer and two men boarded her and discovered she had a six-inch gun, several gun mountings and 15-inch ammunition aboard. So we blew her up."

"A few minutes after we sighted another steamer and chased her till she ran ashore. We were about to board her when some cavalry came up and opened fire. We replied and dropped a few, and then dived and torpedoed the ship."

"Next day (Tuesday) our skipper decided on entering Constantinople. To make a long story short, we got into the harbor without mishap and fired two torpedoes, one of which sank a transport loaded with troops, and the other exploded on shore somewhere. We were met by the Turkish fleet. The troops refused to go on another transport, the shops closed and people ran up the hills—in fact, it caused uproar for a time."

"Banged the First and Biggest One." "The following Friday morning I saw five transports escorted by destroyers. We banged the first and biggest one, which sank in about three minutes."

"A few days later we went back to our old corner, where we sank those other three and caught a supply ship napping."

"A few days after we torpedoed a German transport, and then we got no more blood for a time until last Monday morning. On our way back, just before entering the Narrows, we sank another transport. That was our farewell smack."

"When we broke surface that evening we found a mine hanging over our bows. We chuckled it off as quickly as possible, when our escort came up and gave us three cheers and off we went."

"When we entered the harbor it was dark. Had it been daylight the Admiralty would have made us steam round the fleet. All the ships we passed as we were making for the Admiralty cheered us. The Admiralty, although the smallest ship of 'em all, gave us the best cheers. It was good to hear it and to know that we had at last done something worthy of praise."

550 LIVES ARE IMPERILED BY PREMATURE MOVIE EXPLOSION

Men and Women Cramped Into Temporary Building When Powder Lets Go; Three Actresses Injured.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Five hundred and fifty men and women, crowded into a temporary structure built for a moving picture scene, were imperiled by fire today by the premature explosion of powder which was to have been used later to demolish the building.

Miss Mary Kearney, a moving picture actress, was critically injured. Miss Catherine Fox and Mrs. Cockran, moving picture stars, were seriously hurt and half a dozen others were slightly hurt.

The explosion was caused by a wagon driving over electric wires leading to the powder and establishing a short circuit.

WEDDING PRESENTS BULGING THE SIDES OF 'HONEY SHUCK'

Both Members of Bowling Green's Police Force on Duty at Clark Residence.

ALL "SPARE ROOMS" TAKEN

Colonels Harvey and Watterson and Republican House Leader Mann on the Way.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOWLING GREEN, Mo., June 29.—Every available guest room in Bowling Green by this morning was either occupied by visitors here for the wedding of Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of Speaker Champ Clark, to James McPherson Thompson, tomorrow, or was engaged by visitors still to arrive. Private homes as well as the public buildings have been thrown open in generous hospitality to everybody who comes.

The only restriction Bowling Green imposes is that Bryantes keep as quiet as it is possible. A Bryante is about as welcome in Bowling Green as anybody who has a mild inescapable affliction, provided he does not go around bragging about it. The Baltimore convention may be history, so far as the rest of the world is concerned, but for Bowling Green it is still in session.

Two Distinguished Colonels Near. The list of notables expected for the wedding is rapidly growing. Col. and Mrs. George Harvey, it was reported today, are on their way here, as are Col. and Mrs. Henry Watterson.

Minority Leader and Mrs. Mann, virtually all of the Illinois and Missouri congressional delegations and many Congressmen from Iowa and other states are expected tonight or tomorrow morning.

As for the rest of the visitors expected, it would be easier to compile a list of the important Missouri politicians and leaders than to attempt to give a list.

The Clark home, "Honey Shuck," is open house today. Speaker Clark seemed to be worried this morning for fear he might have to build an extension to house all the wedding gifts. They are coming in by every train and by automobile and motor truck. Enough silver, six-inch gun, several gun mountings and 15-inch ammunition aboard. So we blew her up."

ST. LOUISAN WHO WON IRON CROSS KILLED IN ACTION

Heinrich von Heinrichshofen, Insurance Broker, Became a First Lieutenant.

WIFE RAN HIS BUSINESS

Eads Avenue Man Attained Rank of Captain in Spanish-American War.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, via London, June 29.—The name of First Lieut. Heinrich von Heinrichshofen of St. Louis, Mo., killed May 13, is contained in the latest German casualty lists.

Von Heinrichshofen's family had officers in German Army for 200 years. Lieut. von Heinrichshofen, who lived with his wife at 2524 Eads avenue, came of a family which has had officers in the German army for 200 years, and when there was war, either in his native land or the land of his adoption, he could not content himself with the pursuits of peace.

At the beginning of the Spanish-American war he organized a company of St. Louisans and offered to lead them against the Spaniards. His offer could not be accepted, but he and most of the members of his company enlisted in the Missouri volunteers. He had been a lieutenant in the German army. He was made a Captain in the American Volunteer Army.

When the European war began he had an insurance office at 317 Chestnut street. He told his wife he would rather die for the fatherland than live a coward. She tried to dissuade him from going back to Germany and thought she had succeeded. Then he announced that he had to go to Chicago on business and would be gone some time.

Post Cards Sent by a Friend. He went away and at intervals his wife received post cards from Chicago which she supposed had been sent by her husband. Finally a letter came from him, written in Germany, informing her that he had entered the army and would soon be sent to the front. The post cards she had received had been written in advance by her husband and mailed by a friend, by request.

He had sailed from New York Oct. 10 and had made his way through England and Holland to Germany. He went into the service with the rank of Lieutenant and won promotion to First Lieutenant. In letters to his wife he told of having been in the first and second trenches almost continuously for 46 days.

On March 9 he was presented with the Iron Cross for bravery, the coveted prize of the German soldier. He wrote of this to his wife but did not tell her what specific act of bravery he had performed. He also sent to her photographs of himself and members of his company and drawings of the trenches and underground shelters.

Hopes It Is a Mistake. The first information of her husband's death was conveyed to Mrs. von Heinrichshofen by the Post-Dispatch, through Oscar J. Wendt, employed in her husband's insurance business, which she has conducted since he went away. Her grief over the news was tempered by the consciousness that it was the kind of death her husband would have chosen.

But Mrs. von Heinrichshofen is hopeful that the cablegram is incorrect. There would at least seem to be an error in the date on which he is reported to have been killed, since his wife received a letter from him May 13, three days later than the date of death given in the cablegram. This letter informed her that he was about to lead his men in a charge from the trenches south of Arras, and closed with "God bless you, Heinrich."

She thinks that she would have received information, if he had been killed, from his relatives in Germany, with whom he was in communication. She has received a letter from a brother of her husband, dated May 23, in which he said that he had heard that her husband had been received from her husband and that he had stated in it that he had sent her a letter a few days before. She has heard from her husband every week, in spite of the difficulties of communication. It requires about a month for a letter to reach St. Louis from Germany.

Von Heinrichshofen came to St. Louis in 1892 and began engaging in the insurance business was employed for a time in the engineering department at the city hall. He was 49 years old and had been married three times. He was active in Turnverein circles.

LONG WAR MEANS WILSON AGAIN, PENN. R. VICE PRESIDENT SAYS

Should Conflict End Soon, Vice-President Atterbury Thinks Bad Business Will Defeat Him.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 29.—"It looks to us in the East as if President Wilson will be re-elected if the war continues much longer," said Vice President Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who is here today, when asked about the political situation. "If the war continues much longer, it will defeat him."

The Bull Moose has gone for an indefinite trip to Salt River," he continued. Atterbury then left to see a fish wheel in operation, something he had longed to view, he said, ever since he saw a picture of one in his little school geography in New Albany, Ind.

A postal will bring one of the men or women who are asking for employment through the situation columns in the Post-Dispatch Want Pages today.

St. Louisan, Officer in Kaiser's Army, Who Is Killed in France

LIEUT. VON HEINRICHSHOFEN is the older man at the reader's left. With him is a 19-year-old officer, 20 years the St. Louisan's junior, and the photograph was made at the front immediately after both had been decorated with the Iron Cross for participation in the same deed of bravery. Each is wearing his cross on his breast. Both are in the service uniform worn in the trenches.

CONTRARY AUTO HALTS TRAFFIC, NEXT SCATTERS IT

Machine Causes Excitement at Sixth and Locust After "Going Dead" and Then Starting.

A stalled Ford, which later became a runaway, caused considerable excitement among pedestrians and trolley car passengers at Sixth and Locust streets about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The heavy rain had ceased and the traffic policeman at the corner was beginning to believe that the worst of his troubles were over for the day, when the Ford appeared running south upon Sixth street. The engine went dead and the Ford stopped just at the corner, blocking street car traffic on both Locust and Sixth streets.

The driver tried and tried, but could not start his motor. He and the policeman put their shoulders to the car in an effort to get it off the street car tracks and their efforts were aided by good-natured suggestions from the crowd which quickly gathered.

Suddenly the driver of the car exclaimed: "I believe my emergency brake is set." He leaned over the car and loosened the brake lever. Then another effort was made to push the car from the tracks. It shot ahead like a young colt.

The policeman, who was near the front of the machine and saw it heading straight for a Holladay car, gave the steering wheel a twist and the automobile whirled into Locust street, just grazing the car. The sudden jump of the car alarmed the spectators, who scattered in all directions. As the car whirled it came like an obedient thing towards the driver, who jumped in and checked its mad career. Then he proceeded full legal speed west on Locust street.

In his report of the affair the policeman expresses the opinion that when the driver released the brake lever he was considerably fussed by the comments of the crowd and unconsciously put the car "in speed."

Thus, when the policeman and others resumed pushing the car, the desired end of starting the motor was accomplished in an unexpected and startling manner.

FRANCE WILL GIVE NO NEWS OF PRISONERS TO GERMANY

PARIS, June 29.—The Marins says that the German Government, having failed to grant the request made through the Spanish embassy at Berlin that the names be supplied of French prisoners retained in French territory occupied by Germany, France will be obliged to withhold all news regarding German prisoners in the war zone and to prohibit all correspondence with them.

CONDITIONS IN U. S. DISCUSSED BY MEYER GERHARD

Bernstorff's Emissary Convinced Germany and America Must Understand Each Other.

BERLIN, June 29, by wireless to Saville.—Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, the attaché of the German Colonial Office, who was sent from the United States to Berlin by the German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, to explain the views of the United States regarding the Lusitania case, published an article in Der Tag today on "Germany and America," in which he says his experiences convinced him that both countries misunderstood each other.

"It is true," says Dr. Meyer-Gerhard in his article, "that the American press, with some laudable exceptions, especially the German-American papers, have not succeeded in remaining neutral, but the influence of the press upon public opinion is sometimes greatly overestimated. Doubtless large sections of the American people are friendly towards Germany, whose efficient organization is daily winning new friends and arousing interest in things German."

"One excellent effect of the war is upon German-Americans, who, without sacrifice of their loyalty to their adopted country, have shown strong remembrance of their descent, their education and their culture. Beside them, on the other side of the ocean, there are wide circles who sympathize with Germany."

Adding to the discussion of the armament question, Dr. Meyer-Gerhard says: "Germans often mistake large armament for filled orders. To a large extent such orders are changing big factories into ammunition works. This is regrettable, but the writer is convinced that large parts of the American people disapprove of it. A popular vote would show a considerable majority against the practice. Germans must discriminate between business men accepting orders and the great mass of the American people."

"Equally there are Americans who condemn violation of Belgium's neutrality and the sinking of the Lusitania and are unable to understand the German idea of the real conditions, while Germans are unable to understand how Americans could travel on an armament ship."

"Both people are laboring under entirely different opinions. Both have lived hitherto in peace and friendship and should continue to live. There is no real reason for antagonism existing between them."

The text of the communication follows: "In the western theater: The French yesterday prepared for a night infantry attack between Lens and the Bethune-Arras road, by a strong preparatory fire, but they were frustrated by our artillery."

MEXICANS IN U. S. WATCHED TO KEEP DOWN NEW REVOLT

Washington Seeking to Prevent Further Complications by the Introduction of Revolutionary Movements in the Southern Republic.

FURTHER CLEWS TO PLOTTERS SOUGHT

Complaints Are Made That the $15,000 Bond Is Too Small to Prevent Huerta From Fleeing Across American Border.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Agents of the United States Government are today engaged all over the country in watching the movements of prominent Mexicans, who have been active in Mexican politics, and also those suspected of taking such activity to see that there are no violations of American neutrality.

The arrest of Gen. Victoriano Huerta and Pascual Orozco at El Paso and the strict surveillance over Gen. Felix Diaz, Mondragon, Blanquet and Felipe Angeles, now living in the United States, and others, is a part of the general policy of the American Government to try to prevent the setting of any new military movement in Mexico.

Officials here feel that the revolutionary situation in Mexico ought not to be so further complicated by introduction of new elements. In line with the policy to prevent, if possible, the revolutionary movement in the Southern republic, or, at least, the setting of any such expeditions on American soil, the Government purposes to prosecute vigorously violations of neutrality regardless of the prominence of the individuals or their affiliations. It is possible that others may be identified with the so-called Huerta conspiracy intensified interest here today in the investigation by agents of the Department of Justice into the situation. It is even intimated that citizens of one of the European belligerents are involved.

It was said also that the Department of Justice was in possession of some evidence which seemed to connect Gen. Angeles, Villa's right-hand man, with the revolution. It was said, too, that at the State Department today to that he was in any way involved.

Many Complaints That Bond Is Too Small to Stop Huerta.

EL PASO, Tex., June 29.—Complaints have come from various American and Mexican official sources that the $15,000 bond under which Huerta is insufficient to keep him out of Mexico if he really desires to launch his alleged revolutionary movement. The Mexican leaders are all so carefully guarded, however, that such a break would be almost impossible. Motor cycle police men follow him every moment he is out of the house.

Tomorrow afternoon Huerta is to be a guest at the American army forces at a review at Fort Bliss and entertained at dinner this evening by Col. H. Morgan, commanding the Fifteenth Cavalry. He has accepted an invitation for dinner Thursday evening as the guest of the El Paso newspaper men and correspondents. Orozco, Fuentes, Victor Huerta and other members of the Huerta official family will also be present.

Angels in Washington to Deny Connection With Huerta Coup.

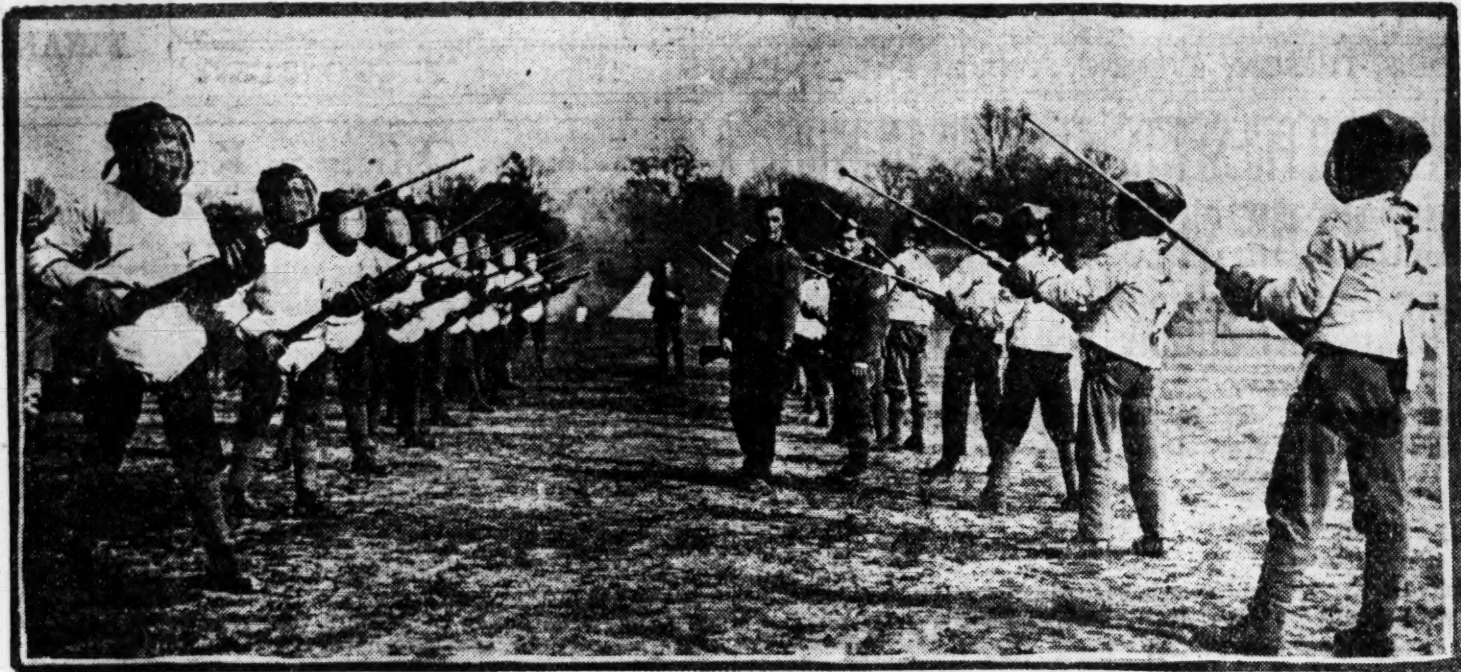

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Gen. Felipe Angeles, Villa's chief lieutenant, arrived here today to deny in person at the State Department that he was connected in any way with the coup to re-establish Huerta's regime in Mexico. Gen. Angeles went into conference with Enrique C. Llorente, head of the Villa agency. Angeles and Llorente went to the War Department and entered a conference with Brigadier-General Scott, chief of Staff of the army. Llorente said Angeles later would make a statement denying implication in any conspiracy with Gen. Huerta. He said the mission of Angeles was a military one. Because of Gen. Scott's thorough familiarity with Mexican military affairs, which includes an intimate acquaintance with Villa, the conference attracted no little attention. After spending more than two hours with Gen. Scott, Angeles and Llorente left the State, War and Navy Building without calling upon any other officials. The two Mexicans declined to discuss their talk with the chief of staff. Gen. Scott said Gen. Angeles had not received the object of his mission to the United States further than to say that he had been in Boston visiting his family and expected to rejoin Gen. Villa in Mexico. The visit, however, served to set at rest in a large measure rumors of a rupture between Villa and Angeles since the latter presented to Gen. Scott a personal letter from Villa. The letter referred to Angeles as Villa's "dear friend and companion." Angeles did not refer to the recent arrest of Gen. Huerta.

Henry Lane Wilson, Ambassador to Mexico during the period which closed with Madero's death and Huerta's ascension to power by what is known as "the embassy agreement," arrived here today. Wilson said he expected to spend a few days in the capital, that he was interested in Mexican affairs in a general way, but declined to discuss his mission.

ZAPATA REPORTED TO BE PREPARING TO LEAVE CAPITAL

Archives Said to Have Been Removed and Trains to Be Ready for Troops.

GALVESTON, Tex., June 29.—A report that the Zapata Government archives had been removed from Mexico City to Cuernavaca and that trains for the transportation of troops from the capital were being held in readiness, was brought to the headquarters of Gen. Pablo Gonzales, the Carranza commander, by Americans yesterday, according to information reaching the Constitutionalist Consul here today.

It also was said that a committee of foreign diplomats was arranging with the Zapatas for the protection of private property during the evacuation of the city.

The dispatch from Vera Cruz added that Gonzales' forces continued to engage the Zapata troops in the suburbs of the capital.

Gonzales Delaying Attack to Avoid Battle Within the City.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Gen. Carranza telegraphed his agency here today that further attack on Mexico City was being delayed while Gen. Gonzales was trying to make arrangements to avoid a battle within the city itself.

The diplomatic corps in Mexico City, the dispatch stated, was taking steps to protect the noncombatants of all nationalities in the event of fighting within the city itself, and the Zapata forces were reported to have sent their archives to Cuernavaca.

The Telegram was the first confirmation from Carranza sources of the defeat of Gen. Gonzales by the Zapata forces in the first attack.

DOCTOR NOT TO BLAME IN CHILD'S DEATH BY LOCKJAW

Coroner Returns Verdict of Accident in Thurman Case, Exonerates Dr. G. O. Whitte.

A verdict of accident was returned by the Coroner today after an inquest in the case of Blanche Thurman, 5 years old, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Thurman of 425A Cosens avenue, who died of tetanus Saturday in the city hospital.

The child had been slightly cut upon the left knee June 18, by a toy rake, in the hands of her brother, Edwin, 4 years old. Her mother placed liniment on the wound, and three days later told the child to Dr. G. O. Whitte of 438 Easton avenue.

Dr. Whitte testified the wound was inflamed and the knee stiff. He put on a bichloride dressing. Next day the child felt better and Dr. Whitte punctured blisters which he had predicted would form on the wound from mixed medicines. He put on a sterile bandage and told the parents to bring the child back if she did not improve. He saw the father the day two later and was told the child was progressing nicely. A short time later the child developed lockjaw and was sent to the hospital by Dr. Whitte.

Coroner Padberg said Dr. Whitte had treated the case as any physician would and absolved him from any blame. He declared anti-tetanic serum, if administered, would have prevented death, but said it was not administered on apparently slight wounds because it cost about $2.50.

MAN UNDER DEATH SENTENCE WINS RIGHT TO A NEW TRIAL

JEFFERSON CITY, June 29.—The Supreme Court reversed and remanded today the case against Vick Gueringer, convicted in Kansas City of having attacked Mrs. Gertrude Shidler in March, 1914, and sentenced to hang. The case was reversed because the trial court allowed Gueringer only 15 minutes in which to file a motion for a new trial.

The verdict of the jury which found Gueringer guilty was returned just 15 minutes before the January term of the court expired. His attorneys maintained that they did not have time between the verdict of the jury and the expiration of the term to file a motion for a new trial. The motion was filed the Monday following and refused by the trial judge on the ground that it had not been legally presented.

POPE INTERVIEW FANTASTIC, SAYS VATICAN ORGAN

Pontiff's Ideas Must Be Sought in Official Documents, Observers Romano Declares.

ROME, June 29.—The Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the Vatican, publishing the statement made by Cardinal Pietro Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, in which he declared Pope Benedict was misquoted in the published interview obtained from him last week by Louis Latapie, a member of the staff of the Paris La Liberté, makes this comment:

"From this interview it follows that the ideas of the Pope must be sought again in official pontifical documents and not in words never uttered, but which were attributed to the Pontiff and which were reproduced with fantastic interpretation in the newspapers without respect for the august dignity of the Pope."

"Additional evidence of this lack of respect is found in the discussion of the letter from the Pope to Prince von Buelow. An effort has been made to give it political character and significance, whereas it was a private letter replying to Prince von Buelow, who, unable to visit the Vatican, believed it well to write the Pope to take leave of him and ask his benediction for the Princes. Attempts are being made to convert this letter into a political document and the newspapers even ask its publication without regard to the Pope."

Cardinal von Hartmann, Archbishop of Cologne, and Cardinal von Bettinger, Archbishop of Munich, have addressed the Pope, strongly protesting against a publication which has appeared in Paris under the title of "War and Catholicism." This publication was compiled by Mons. Baudrillard, rector of the Catholic Institute of Paris, with an introduction by Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, and relates to alleged German atrocities, chiefly against the Jews.

Cardinals von Hartmann and Von Bettinger deny that such atrocities ever occurred, and declare that Cardinal Mercier was never imprisoned, as asserted in the article in question, and their statement says:

"The French and Belgian clergy continue such a campaign, they will force the German Catholic clergy to have recourse to reprisals, giving the world an unedifying spectacle of Christian brotherhood."

ONE-LEGGED SHOESTRING PEDDLERS FIGHT ON STREET

Row Started When West End Vendor Came to See if Trade Was Better in Business District.

George Wright and John Murphy, each having only one leg and each being a peddler of shoestrings, chewing gum and lead pencils, were in Police Judge Hogan's court this morning, charged with fighting.

A traffic patrolman arrested the men on Locust street, between Ninth and Tenth, yesterday at noon, when he found them on the ground and Wright sitting on his chest. Shoestrings, gum and pencils were scattered over the pavement.

Wright told Judge Hogan he usually sold his goods in the West End, but that yesterday he came downtown to see how business was. He met Murphy, who seemed to think he had a monopoly on the shoestring, gum and pencil business in the downtown section. He said Murphy knocked his box of goods out of his hand with a crutch and that the fight followed.

Murphy took the stand and denied he had been fighting. Judge Hogan asked him how he happened to be on the ground, and he said he must have slipped.

Judge Hogan asked: "Can you fight?" Murphy replied that if he could he would be in the army.

Judge Hogan fined them $5 each and stayed the fine on their promise not to try to corner the chewing gum or shoestring market, and to refrain from fighting.

PRINCE TIRES OF BEING ANVIL, WANTS TO BE HAMMER

"My Job Has Been to Hold Out," Rupprecht of Bavaria Tells Correspondent.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE CROWN PRINCE OF BAVARIA'S ARMY, June 29, via The Hague.—"I should say that the French had used between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 shells in their offensive against my army in about six weeks. The latter figure is probably nearer right, though it is rather difficult to estimate with accuracy. I should say, though, that the French artillery fired an average of nearly 100,000 shells a day. Our observations as checked up indicate that the French official report was correct in stating that their gunners fired 300,000 shells in a single day, which was the high-water mark of artillery work out here."

This was one of many interesting things which Crown Prince Rupprecht, the "anvil in the West," told me during dinner and a subsequent walk of an hour in the Italian garden of his headquarters.

The news of the fall of Lemberg arrived while we were at table, but it produced no emotional excitement or enthusiasm, for the Germans had thought the stronghold would soon fall as a matter of course. The news did move the Crown Prince, however, to express a whimsical wish that he, too, was in the East, hoping to smash the retreating Russians with Bavarian sledge-hammer blows.

"I Am Only the Anvil," he said. "They are the hammer in the East," he said. "Here I am only the anvil. My job has been to hold out."

He left no doubt in my mind, however, that he was eager to bring the time when he could exchange the role of an anvil for that of hammer and give the allies hard offensive blows instead of stopping them.

He spoke with quiet pride of the great bravery and devotion of his troops and told something of what it meant to stop overpowering masses, launched against them and back up by the fire or artillery with an apparently inexhaustible supply of ammunition.

"One of my regiments was exposed to a murderous and constant fire for a week, 35,777 shells falling on them on the last day," he said. "But the skeleton regiment held and turned back the attack."

The Crown Prince tactfully refrained from discussing the situation of American ammunition until I asked him whether he agreed with the opinion expressed by his chief of staff and voiced also by several Generals and staff officers at the front that the war would have been ended long ago if it had not been for American ammunition.

He hesitated an instant. He said that they had spotted a good deal of American ammunition and it explained to his mind the French artillery's ability to shoot off such staggering quantities.

"American Ammunition Prolonging War," I asked what percentage of the ammunition shot by the French he thought was of American manufacture.

The Crown Prince answered that it was rather difficult to estimate this accurately, but he thought that probably at least 60 per cent were American shells. He added:

"This last French offensive would not have been possible without American ammunition."

No offensive, he suggested, was possible, without immense amounts of ammunition. Then, quite dispassionately, he went on to what was the logical conclusion for him:

"American ammunition is undoubtedly prolonging the war many months."

When darkness ended the garden promenade of the Crown Prince and his modest retinue of four went to the drawing room, where over a very small glass of his native Munich beer he forgot the war for a few minutes and talked hunting. He was in America 12 years ago and did some big game hunting in Canada. He told of hunting the elusive chamois among his own beloved mountains in Bavaria and expressed the hope that he could visit America after the war. He said he was particularly anxious to do some hunting in the West.

Kaiser Reported to Have Wept at Bodies of Fallen Soldiers

LONDON, June 29.—

DISPATCH to the London Morning Post, from Copenhagen, says: The German papers state that the Emperor, on visiting the western battlefield, knelt before a large group of fallen Germans and wept, exclaiming, 'I have not willed this.'

GOVERNMENT NOW NOTIFIES GERMANY WHEN U. S. SHIPS SAIL

Practice Adopted So That Kaiser's Submarine Commanders May Not Fire on Vessels by Mistake.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The United States Government has adopted the practice of notifying the German Admiralty through Ambassador Gerard of the time of departure of every passenger ship sailing under the American flag and approximately the hours during which it will pass through the war zone.

This precaution is being taken in order that the German submarine commanders may be on the watch for American vessels and prevent a repetition of the attack on the American tank ship Guilford.

The Guilford was torpedoed by a German submarine commander who supposed the vessel was a British ship because it was in company of two English patrol boats, and the American flag was not observed until after the torpedo had been fired.

A. H. BUISSE, INSTRUCTOR, GETS DIVORCE BY DEFAULT

He Testifies Wife, Who Formerly Was Florence Hill, Cared for Him Only as a Brother.

Armand H. Buysse, an instructor in a school of languages, today obtained a default divorce in Judge Kimmel's court from Florence H. Buysse, a daughter of Mrs. Ewing Hill of 327 Westminister place. Mrs. Buysse is in New York with her two children, Octavia, 5 years old, and Ewing, 3 years old. The mother gets general custody of the children, the father being permitted to have them for one month each year.

The Buyssees were married July 1, 1908, and separated in May, 1914, while living in New York. She told him she did not love him and cared for him only as she would a brother, he testified.

STRING OF GARAGES AT LINDELL AND KING'S HIGHWAY

Portable Structures to Be for Use of Dwellers in the St. Regis Apartments.

A plan to erect seven small automobile garages on a lot at King's highway and Lindell boulevard, just west of the St. Regis Apartments and directly opposite the main entrance to Forest Park, has aroused the opposition of persons living in the neighborhood.

The garages will be under the windows of the Buckingham Hotel dining room. T. J. Darcey, manager of the Buckingham, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that they would spoil the view of Lindell boulevard and of the Forest Park entrance and that their presence and use so near to the hotel might be a serious annoyance to his guests who have rooms on the north side of the hotel.

Claude E. Vrooman, principal owner of the St. Regis Apartments, conceived the plan of building the garages for the use of dwellers in the St. Regis. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter he had not heard of any opposition to the garages and that he intended to install them as quickly as possible.

Shrubbery Expected to Hide Them. The lot, extending about 100 feet west of the St. Regis Apartments and running to King's highway, has been planted with small trees and shrubs, converting it into a small park.

"The garages will not be visible from Lindell boulevard or from King's highway," said Vrooman. "The shrubs and trees will hide them from view from the north and the west. The Buckingham Hotel building also will help conceal them on the King's highway side."

"I am putting up the garages at the request of individual tenants in the St. Regis, who will pay the building expenses for five of them. It was my original plan to build only five, but I probably will add two more at my own expense, for the benefit of other tenants who may wish to use them. They will be small portable garages."

Work of Excavation Begun. The work of excavation for the garages already has been begun. They are to be at the rear of the lot, extending from the west wall of the St. Regis Building to a point about 60 feet from King's highway. They will face an alley between the lot and the Buckingham Hotel to the south.

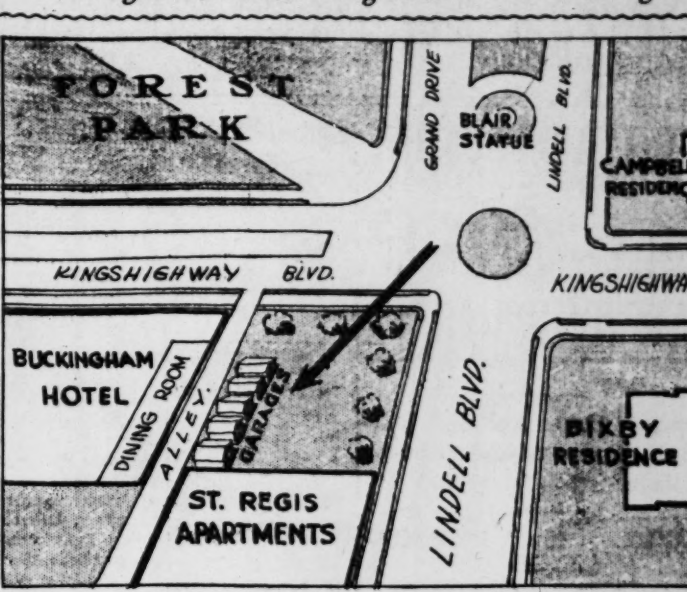

"I am sure that 15 or 20 of my guests will seriously object to the garages being built so near to the hotel and in plain view from the entrance to Forest Park," said Manager Darcey of the Buckingham. "The shrubbery will only partly screen them from the street and they will be in plain view from the window of the Buckingham dining room. Aside from the unsightliness of the garages, they will be an added inconvenience, as machines will be driving in and out of them at all hours of the night."

The palatial residence of W. K. Bixby, at Lindell boulevard and King's highway, is directly opposite the lot on which the garages are to be installed. In the immediate neighborhood also are many other fine residences, including that of the late James Campbell.

STEEL ESTIMATES FOR BRIDGE $57,000 LOWER THAN BIDS

Lowest Bid Is $1,017,550, While City Engineers Figured Cost at $960,000.

Bids for steel for the eastern highway and railroad approaches to the free bridge, opened this afternoon by the Board of Public Service, disclosed that even at the lowest bid the steel will cost the city $57,500 more than city engineers had estimated.

The bid of the American Bridge Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, is 2,165 tons a pound. It is estimated by that company's engineers that 23,500 tons of steel will be required for the work. This would make the cost for steel $1,017,550.

Director of Public Welfare Tolkaek, in charge of the opening of bids, said he had expected the lowest bid would be under 2 cents. He had estimated that 24,000 tons of steel would be required and that the price at 2 cents per pound would make the expenditure for this purpose $960,000.

The next lowest bid was by the Cambria Steel Co. of Pittsburgh, which bid 2,175 cents. There were seven other bids. The contract will not be let until President Kinsey and Director Hoopes, who are investigating municipal electric plants in Eastern cities, return to St. Louis.

Director Tolkaek said that he had based his estimate that the city would be able to get steel for 2 cents a year ago because of business depression. He supposed advancing prices were due to demand of the European countries for steel for war munitions.

PIERCE "SWATS" FLIES AT HEARING OF $1,500,000 SUIT

Oil Magnate Complains of Noise
Without and Heat Within Courtroom.

STOCK CLAIMED BY BANK

Statute of Limitations Is Pleaded by Defense in Addition to Rightful Possession.

H. Clay Pierce, millionaire oil magnate, sat in Circuit Judge Kinsey's court yesterday and complained of the heat and flies as testimony was introduced in the suit of the National Bank of Commerce to recover $1,500,000 worth of Nashville Terminal Co. stock from him. Once, when his attorney, F. N. Judson, asked him if he could find a place where he could hear, Pierce replied there was no use trying, on account of the noise outside and the heat inside. Then he swatted a fly. His non-in-law, Eben Richards, a New York attorney, sat beside him and remarked that the weather was about as "sticky" as he cared to experience.

Conditions in the courtroom were more comfortable today. It was much cooler and the flies did not seem to bother Pierce, but he became restless when the noon hour passed and court was still in session. The morning hearing was not concluded until 12:45.

Last Saw the Stock in 1904.

W. B. Cowan, a vice president of the Bank of Commerce, testified that he last saw the Nashville Terminal stock in the bank vaults in October, 1904, and that he did not know how or when it was taken from the bank. The latter part of the session was devoted to introducing documentary evidence. The suit against Pierce was filed by the bank in April, 1913. It is alleged he has in his possession the entire issue of capital stock of the terminal company, amounting to 10,000 shares, which had been pledged with the bank for a loan, and refused to surrender the stock. The stock had been pledged by the Tennessee Construction Co., which was organized to build the Tennessee Central Railroad, which enterprise proved a costly venture for several St. Louisans, including Pierce. The security got away from the bank while the late V. C. Van Blarcom was president of the institution.

Ben F. Edwards, now president of the Central National Bank, who succeeded Van Blarcom as president of the Bank of Commerce, testified that the collateral was with the bank as late as July, 1905.

"Some time later we discovered we didn't have the stock in our possession," he added. Judge Kinsey wanted to know how the bank knew Pierce had the collateral. The witness answered that the information was obtained from a New York trust company.

George L. Edwards, attorney for the bank, in his opening statement, told the court the receipt for the deposit of the stock ran in the name of the Tennessee Construction Co., per Joseph W. Bailey, who was United States Senator from Texas. The receipt fell into the hands of a new manager of the company and in this way Pierce got possession of the stock, the attorney said.

Statute of Limitations Pleaded.

According to the attorney the bank tried to get Pierce to surrender the property without a suit as litigation between him and the bank was not wanted on account of his being one of the bank's directors and a stockholder. However, Pierce claimed he was rightfully in possession of the stock and, after waiting a long time, the bank was forced to bring suit, the attorney stated.

The answer of Pierce pleads the statute of limitations to the "altered cause of action." The defense at the outset of the trial made no statement as to what it expected to prove, but Pierce, in a deposition, testified that the collateral belonging to him, since he had advanced the money for it. The trial was resumed today.

Other lawyers for the bank are Edward A. Roy and former Judge W. W. Williams of Booneville, Mo. Pierce is represented by the firms of Judson, Green & Henry and Fordyce, Holliday & White.

BRIDE DID NOT DROWN IN BATHTUB, WITNESS SAYS

Impossible for Her to Have Been Submerged, Pathologist Testifies in Murder Trial.

LONDON, June 29.—The morning session today of the trial for murder of George Joseph Smith, husband of three wives who died in their baths, was taken up with the examination of Dr. Spilsbury, a noted pathologist, who gave expert testimony of the varying effects of a sudden fit or "stopping spell" upon a person in a bath.

In the case of Alice Burnham, one of Smith's three brides, who was drowned in her bathtub at Blackpool, Dr. Spilsbury declared, it would have been impossible for a person of her size to have been submerged in either a sitting or a lying position, in the bathtub that had been produced in court.

Mother Jones Not as Belligerent at Near View as Her War-Like Record Might Indicate Marquerite Martyn Tells of Her Other Side

Just Arising at 9:30 A. M. Strike
Leader Apologizes, Saying
It Is Due to Rain.

TALKS OF ROCKEFELLERS

Declares They Are Victims of System That Is Grinding
Down Workingmen.

By Marquerite Martyn.

Mother Jones, 71-year-old insurrectionist, who held the State of Colorado in such terror as to warrant her arrest and deportation before a military guard backed by bayonets, who returned to Trinidad because she had been exiled to be clapped into jail for two months, who underwent the unique feminine experience of a trial by courtmartial in West Virginia and served three months in the military hallways, with 45 or 50 miners convicted as accessories before the fact of rioting, murder and bloodshed, was at the American Hotel yesterday in her other role, the side she turns toward her "boys," and which has won for her her affectionate sobriquet.

She had made an incendiary speech before the Central Trades and Labor Union the night before, in which her condemnation fell particularly upon the women present.

But, being a mine owner or a capitalist or a backsliding trade unionist, I knew I had nothing to fear from her, terrifying as her record, which I just had scanned, might be.

And further, if she had so much as hinted the word plenary, I should have pointed at the clock, for here it was 9:30 and the arch defender of labor was just getting out of bed. Assuredly, she hadn't her war paint on. They do say that at no time does she affect an armor more formidable than the black silk, jet bonnet, white ruff, silk stockings and pumps of a rather "fxy" old lady; that the defensive powder she uses is mostly applied with a puff to the end of her nose, and that, after all, the weapons with which she engages in her war are not so much as a pair of sharp wits and ready tongue.

Apologizes for Sleeping Late.

She apologized for sleeping so late, blaming the rainy morning. Perhaps I had caught Mother Jones at a disadvantage, for she was, but many a younger, more delicately cared for woman would have envied her one test as she stood it.

A complexion as pink as a baby's, a wealth of silver-white hair, and teeth and smile as perfect as the porcelain of a young woman, she was a picture of youth and vigor, as one of the fact merits recording small, even and all her own were the daylight's bald revelation.

As she busied herself with my raincoat and asked if I had got my feet wet, certainly she did not seem like a woman who would steal a Gatling gun, yet that is another of the crimes for which she has been indicted.

Had I Caught Mother Jones Off Guard?

I don't think so. She doesn't leave off her motherliness altogether when she talks of the past and bloody war she has engaged in, nor in the roughest mining camp nor among the powerful men with whom she has matched wits when she has been called to Washington to take part in Congressional investigations.

It was with an air of maternal indulgence that she referred to John D. Rockefeller Jr. and her famous meeting with him.

"He is one of the masters of the system which is leading us, not to feudalism, but to absolutism. But he is a victim of the system himself."

"He was a young man who really wanted to be informed and I informed him about conditions in Colorado so far as his courtesy in inviting me under his own roof would permit. He promised me in good faith that he would go to Colorado and see for himself. He has not gone yet. Perhaps the death of his mother and father-in-law has detained him. But if he does go what can he learn or feel of the actual wants of the people. He can have no more conception of poverty and its misery than I can of the ownership of great piles of wealth. And if he does go he is surrounded by a cabinet which will see to it that he sees no more than they intend for him to see."

"Poisoned by Economic Leeches."

"These great holders of the country's wealth are themselves fed upon by economic leeches who sting and poison. But," she added with a slight amount of resignation, "these leeches are victims of the system. In the last the social position of their wives and daughters or some other worldly honor may suffer, they are urged on in their ambition."

"Even the elder Rockefeller, though he is the master of the system, is nevertheless a victim. He did not make himself what he is. There is no such thing as a self-made man. It is the system that makes him."

"The only power that can save the workers and undo the system is the workers themselves. And they are corrupt."

SHE DOES NOT LOOK LIKE ONE WHO WOULD STEAL A MACHINE GUN. YET THAT IS ONE OF THE CRIMES ATTRIBUTED TO HER.

ruption in so far as they yield, don't look and think ahead.

"The great hope of bringing the work-people to a sense of their position and responsibility lies in the overloads going too far, overreaching themselves and forcing such uprisings as have occurred in Colorado. Such an uprising may come over the whole country. It did in France once, you know. We may, at this moment, be living upon a sleeping volcano."

She did not rant as she said these things. The reputed violence of language that incites mobs to frenzy and desperate deeds was difficult to connect with her, who seemed the mildest-mannered of elderly women. Her speech was calm, judicial and the sympathy of Mother Jones, labor organizer, seemed about equally divided between capital and labor. And then, just when I thought she was voicing optimism, it was only a flash of her irrepresible Irish wit—and was encouraged to suggest Henry Ford as the realization of a compromise between labor and capital, she broke forth in fierce denunciation.

"I had done a service for some Mexican revolutionaries arrested in San Francisco. Oh, mother, our lives are up to you!" they had written me. We saved them from the extradition which meant execution. So when I later went to Mexico City to do a little Standard Oil investigation of my own. I met Madero. Oh, he was a fine man, charming, with lots of good blood in him. I said to him, 'Mr. President, I hope your administration will go far to counteract the great wrongs that have been done.' And he replied, 'Mother Jones, I intend to see that the people are put back on their lands. I will do all I can to take the burden off the under-fellow.' And I was so carried away with his sincerity that I just impulsively threw my arms around him and embraced him."

"Villa, too, I have met," she added reminiscently. "And I thought him a fine brave man, but his adventurous spirit seems to have been corroded and sidetracked in the wrong direction."

"Carranza is a fine type, too, and some of his associates whom I have met in New York are splendid, earnest seekers after justice in Mexico."

Conversation naturally led to President Wilson.

"Wilson's Mexican Policy Praised."

"I differ with him on most questions," said Mother Jones, "but in dealing with the Mexican problem he cannot be too highly commended, for I happen to know that vast and powerful pressure has been brought to bear upon him in Washington on behalf of American investments in Mexico and he has resisted."

"He has kept our country out of war," she said. "I said, looking down upon the short, round, little figure standing beside me, when at last I remembered she had not had breakfast yet and arose to depart, 'tell me what my mother did to disgrace me!'"

"Women are all powerful," she replied. "They could do it all if they would but take thought. I saw them put the militia on the 'bum' out in Ludlow enlisting 4000 men in the union ranks over night."

"Would you not recommend votes for women as a powerful and convenient weapon?"

"Votest! I've been too busy with trouble in Colorado the last few years to give votes for women much attention. And in Colorado they have had woman's suffrage 23 years. I didn't notice that it had any influence to change matters one way or the other. If women had suffrage I fear it would be just a repetition of male suffrage. In your Cabinet would you have Anne Morgan, Mrs. Belmont, isn't it?"

I didn't notice that it had any influence to change matters one way or the other. If women had suffrage I fear it would be just a repetition of male suffrage. In your Cabinet would you have Anne Morgan, Mrs. Belmont, isn't it?"

ALIENIST SWEARS HE BELIEVES THAW WAS ALWAYS SANE

New Hampshire Doctor Declares
Killing of White Was Not Act of Paranoiac.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Dr. Charles P. Bancroft, head of the New Hampshire State Hospital for the Insane and a member of the Federal Commission which examined Harry K. Thaw during his sojourn in New Hampshire, swore to the witness stand today that in his opinion Thaw was not only sane but always had been sane. Dr. Bancroft testified as an expert alienist in the jury proceedings to determine Thaw's mental condition.

Thaw's act in killing Stanford White, Dr. Bancroft said, was not the product of a systematized delusion such as characterizes the true paranoiac.

"Thaw knew that White had been antagonistic to him in an unpleasant way," he said. "He wanted to get even with White. His act was the product of a sane mind, which, after he had indulged in champagne, suddenly lost control of its effect."

"Then you believe Thaw never was insane?" asked Deputy Attorney-General Becker.

"I do," was the reply. "The reason for my belief is that Thaw expressed regret for his deed. A paranoiac never expresses regret."

Dr. D. Percy Hickling of Washington, D. C., president of the American Society of Jurisprudence, a member of the New Hampshire Commission, testified that he, too, had found Thaw sane and rational. He had examined Thaw at the Matteawan asylum some months prior to Thaw's escape from that institution, as well as in New Hampshire.

Thaw, Dr. Hickling said, seemed to have been really in love with his wife, Evelyn Nesbit, at the time of the killing, but at the time of his examination his attitude had changed.

Deputy Attorney-General Cook was engaged in an exhaustive examination of Dr. Bancroft when the court adjourned yesterday. His sharp questions concerning Thaw's habits prior to the killing of Stanford White seemed to put a severe strain upon Thaw as he listened to them.

There are two more alienists in the list of Thaw witnesses yet to be called, and it was understood that the State was prepared to subject them to long examinations which could not be concluded before tomorrow.

Gen. Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H., chairman of the commission of which Dr. Bancroft was a member, also described Thaw as sane and rational at the hearing yesterday.

TURNER SAYS HE COULDN'T GET WIFE TO STAY AT HOME

Editor of "Much Ado" Attributes
Marital Troubles to Her
"Impossible" Friends.

Harry S. Turner, editor of "Much Ado," a fortnightly publication, and author of "The Autobiography of a Failure," told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that if there is anything unusual in the suit for divorce he filed yesterday against Martha Evelyn Bradley Turner, it is because Mrs. Turner is an unusual woman. The marriage of the Turners took place in New Albany, Ind., Oct. 23, 1913. She obtained a divorce from John Bradley after she met Turner.

"For the last year I have been trying to get my wife to stay at home occasionally," said Turner, when seen at a garage he owns at 507 Delmar avenue, where he also has his publishing office. "We had a home at 508 Delmar which I thought was a nice place, but she did not seem so to consider it. For her it was just a starting point to get somewhere else."

"I don't want to be hard in speaking of the girl, for she was a nice girl until she began going about with some impossible friends. I wanted a home and home-cooked meals and home conversation. She refused to cook and when she would go away and I asked her where she had been, she would amilingly shake her head and decline to answer. Once or twice when I tried to press my inquiries she forgot her manners and threw household articles at me."

"My friends call me a disciple of Nietzsche, but I doubt if I can qualify. Zarathustra advised: 'Thou goest among women? Carry a whip.' Now, I just cannot endure seeing a woman in tears."

Turner said that he kept trying to overlook things until his wife finally left the house and went to live with her mother at 5874 Easton avenue. Then, he said, he felt it was time to bring suit.

One of Mrs. Turner's friends to whom Turner objected is Mrs. Estelle Ryan of 1184 North Nevada avenue. Mrs. Ryan was in an automobile with Mrs. Ryan when Mrs. Ryan's car struck a traffic lamp at Eighteenth and Locust streets, and both their names were entered upon the police blotter after they had been taken to the central station. Turner said, however, that this particular incident had nothing to do with his bringing suit.

Neither Mrs. Turner nor Mrs. Ryan could be found at their residences this morning when a reporter endeavored to get their versions of the case.

KIEL IMPRESSED WITH CITY LIGHTING PLANT AT TORONTO

It Convinced Him, He Says,
That Public-Owned Utility
Can Better Serve People.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
TORONTO, June 29.—An inspection and study completed yesterday by Mayor Kiel and a committee of Aldermen from St. Louis of the Toronto electric lighting and power system added to their conviction that municipal plants can better and cheaper serve the public, than can privately owned plants. Mayor Kiel so expressed himself at the conclusion of the day's investigation.

The Toronto municipal plant obtains its current from the generating plant at Niagara Falls. It has been in operation five years and in that time has built up a business to the extent where it now supplies 60 per cent of all electricity used in Toronto, the private company having been able to hold only 40 per cent of the business.

Private Rates Reduced.
In addition to this the low rates of the municipal plant have forced concessions from the private plant, which has reduced its rates more than one-half.

Manager H. H. Cousins of the municipal plant conducted the St. Louis officials over much of the system and explained its history in detail. He said that, although Toronto is 110 miles from the generating plant, during the last 18 months there has been no interruption of current for more than one-half minute. The average cost to residence consumers is from 3 1/2 to 4 cents per kilowatt hour, the rate being based on the amount of current used.

The plant has 35,321 consumers. Manager Cousins said, and of this number 20,000 are residence consumers. The cheaper service, he said, had caused a more extensive use of electricity, the residents of Toronto now using it extensively for not only lighting, but cooking, heating and other domestic purposes. Cheap current had also been of great benefit to the manufacturers of the city, he said, many new factories having been opened, and old ones changing from steam to electricity for power.

Mayor Kiel departed last night by boat for Buffalo. Aldermen Barney L. Schwartz, William F. Otto, Edward Sobel, Eugene Gregory and Luke E. Hart, who accompanied him, remained in Toronto last night to view the street lighting system, which is unsurpassed in any city. They went to Buffalo today and will depart from there tomorrow night for Detroit to inspect the municipal street lighting system of that city.

SPOUSE SINGS AS WOMEN SEEK COMMUTATION

Petition for Stay of Execution on July 16 Being Circulated.

William Sprouse, sentenced to be hanged at Clayton July 16 for the murder of his wife, plays checkers and cards in the Clayton jail and sings with the jail quartet while a number of women are canvassing St. Louis County for signatures to petitions asking Gov. Major to commute his sentence to life imprisonment.

When the jail quartet bursts into song, as it does several times each day, the condemned man's clear tenor voice can be plainly heard by those on the courthouse square. The songs mostly are of a sentimental sort, such as "In the Evening by the Moonlight," and occasionally there is a religious one.

To jail attaches Sprouse appears little concerned about impending death. He eagerly joins in pastimes of prisoners. He devotes a considerable portion of his time to writing letters to women, whose names he has obtained, urging them to efforts in his behalf. In these letters he states, what appears to be contrary to his stoicism, that he is "down in the mouth."

His attorneys, former State Senator E. L. Matthews today gave out petitions to five women for circulation, and stated that within a few days he would have signatures of 200 county residents.

The petitions are being signed by many who have expressed their belief in Sprouse's guilt, but they oppose capital punishment on purely circumstantial evidence, such as Sprouse was convicted upon.

Prosecuting Attorney Ralph said that while he opposed capital punishment, such was the law, and that if Sprouse had committed the crime he would abuse his official capacity and make an "invasion of the jury box."

Prosecuting Attorney thinks Sprouse should be hanged, as a jury and the Supreme Court have determined, and that a future remedy should be afforded by the Legislature passing a law abolishing capital punishment.

The Prosecuting Attorney cited the fact that the Supreme Court had not found any error in the trial court's conduct of the Sprouse case. He said Sprouse had tried to set up an alibi and had failed. He ridiculed Sprouse's assertion that his wife was still alive in Chicago, and would make her identity known after he was put to death. A woman found murdered on former Judge Moses N. Sprouse's farm in the county Oct. 30 last, was identified as Sprouse.

U. S. DECLINES TO LET PRIZE COURT SETTLE FRYE CASE

Note Informs German Government That Reparation for Sinking of American Vessel by Prinz Eitel Friedrich Can Be Made Only Through Diplomacy.

WORDS OF TREATIES ARE CITED IN CASE

Willing to Accept Mere Indemnity, if Paid Quickly—Right to Sink Neutral Merchant Ships Is Strongly Contested.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—With the publication today of the American note to Germany concerning the destruction of the American ship William P. Frye and her cargo of wheat by the German commerce destroyer Prinz Eitel Friedrich, interest here centered in the character of the reply the German Government would make.

It was dispatched to Ambassador Gerard on June 24 and by him presented to the German Foreign Office last Saturday afternoon.

The communication asks that Germany reconsider her refusal to settle by direct diplomatic negotiations instead of prize court proceedings the claim presented on behalf of the captain and crew of the Frye and points out that such proceedings are unnecessary and not binding upon the United States in view of Germany's admission of liability for the sinking of the ship, under the treaty of 1852.

The American Government declares that it will accept indemnity, if paid promptly, as reparation. It is made clear that the United States will not accept Germany's contention that she has a right to stop the carrying of contraband by American ships, "by destruction of the contraband and the ship carrying it."

Text of the American Note.

The text of the note, which is addressed by Secretary Lansing to Ambassador Gerard in Berlin, is as follows:

"Department of State, Washington, June 24, 1915. You are instructed to present the following note to the German Minister of Foreign Affairs:

"I have the honor to inform your excellency that I duly communicated to your government your note of the 7th inst. on the subject of the claim presented in my note of April 3 last on behalf of the owners and captain of the American sailing vessel William P. Frye, in consequence of her destruction by the German auxiliary cruiser, Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

"In reply, I am instructed by my Government to state that it is not the policy of the United States to submit to a prize court the question of the liability of Germany for the destruction of the Frye and her cargo."

Prayer for Italians' Success in Battle Is Approved by the Pope

TURIN, June 29.

The following prayer for the victory of Italian arms has been formally approved for public and private use by Pope Benedict:

"Oh, Jesus Christ, our Lord, who didst so love Thy native land as to weep for it in sorrow, look pitifully on our beloved Italy. She, Thou seest, is fighting to make safe our national boundaries and to stretch forth her hand to her own unredemmed brethren. Not lust of usurpation, therefore, nor hatred, move her, but justice and love.

"Bless, oh, Jesus, our arms on land and sea, render them gloriously victorious. Bless our soldiers, sustain even to the end their proverbial courage free from sin, those brave sons of ours for whom Thou hast shed Thy glorious blood, so that as many of them as fall victims to sacred duty may be safe with Thee in paradise.

"Give, oh Jesus, to the King, his Generals and statesmen, these lights and these graces that they need in this decisive hour for our Italy. Surround with special comfort, we beseech Thee, families who have dear ones in our army and in our navy. Grant us to be worthy instruments to religious and civil charity in this, our grievous national crisis, and enable Italy, issuing stronger and greater in victory, to hail speedily the desired day of peace."

This prayer was recited publicly for the first time Sunday at a solemn national service in the Gesù Church, the Rome headquarters of the Order of Jesuits in the presence of several Cardinals.

The communication asks that Germany reconsider her refusal to settle by direct diplomatic negotiations instead of prize court proceedings the claim presented on behalf of the captain and crew of the Frye and points out that such proceedings are unnecessary and not binding upon the United States in view of Germany's admission of liability for the sinking of the ship, under the treaty of 1852.

they are outside of the present discussion, because, as pointed out in my previous note on the subject, dated April 20, the claim under discussion does not include damages for the destruction of the cargo."

"The real question between the two Governments is what reparation must be made for a breach of treaty obligations, and that is not a question which falls within the jurisdiction of a prize court."

"In my note on the subject, the Government of the United States requested that full reparation be made by the Imperial German Government for the destruction of the William P. Frye. Reparation necessarily includes an indemnity for the actual pecuniary loss sustained, and the Government of the United States takes this opportunity to assure the Imperial German Government that such an indemnity, if promptly paid, will be accepted as satisfactory reparation, but it does not rest with a prize court to determine what reparation should be made, or what reparation would be satisfactory to the Government of the United States."

"Your excellency states in your note of June 7 that in the event the prize court should not grant indemnity in accordance with the treaty requirements, the German Government would not hesitate to arrange for equitable indemnity, but it is not necessary that the Government of the United States should be satisfied with the amount of the indemnity, and it would seem to be more appropriate and convenient that an arrangement for equitable indemnity should be agreed upon now, rather than later. The decision of the prize court, even on the question of the amount of indemnity to be paid, would not be binding or conclusive on the Government of the United States."

"The Government of the United States dissents from the view expressed in your note that there will be no foundation for a claim of the American Government unless the prize courts should not grant indemnity in accordance with the treaty."

"The claim presented by the American Government is for an indemnity for a violation of a treaty, in distinction from an indemnity in accordance with the treaty, and therefore is a matter for adjustment by direct diplomatic discussion between the two Governments and is in no way dependent upon the action of a German prize court."

"For the reasons above stated, the Government of the United States cannot recognize the propriety of submitting the claim presented by it on behalf of the owners and captain of the Frye to the German prize court for settlement."

"Not interested in Other Claims."

"The Government of the United States is not concerned with any proceedings which the Imperial German Government may wish to take on other claims of neutral and enemy interested parties which have not been presented by the Government of the United States, but which you state in your note of June 7 make prize court proceedings in this case indispensable, and it does not perceive the necessity for postponing the settlement of the present case pending the consideration of those other claims by the prize court."

"The Government of the United States therefore suggests that the Imperial German Government reconsider the subject in the light of these considerations and, because of the objections against resorting to the prize court, the Government of the United States renews its former suggestion that an effort be made to settle this claim by direct diplomatic negotiations."

FORNEY ATTACKED FATHER-IN-LAW, WAITER DECLARES

George McHenry Admits He Was Present When Rich Candy Man Was Beaten.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 28.—George McHenry, a waiter of Washington, D. C., who was arrested there and brought here in connection with a murderous attack made upon Franklin T. Schneider, a wealthy candy manufacturer, was questioned for six hours yesterday by the police. He first maintained his innocence but finally made a complete confession, according to Capt. Homer P. Crooks of the detective department.

McHenry, according to the police, admitted he was with Thomas G. Forney, the Washington attorney, and son-in-law of Schneider, at the time the attack was made. He denied he had struck the candy manufacturer with a hammer, as Forney alleged in his statement, but declared the hammer was in Forney's hand.

About three months ago, McHenry said, Forney met him on the street and told him of a plot to kill Schneider. McHenry, according to the police, said he accompanied Forney to his office where a promissory note for $4000 was drawn up and this given to McHenry.

"He said I would receive the full amount if I disposed of the old man and put him out of the road," McHenry is alleged to have said in his statement to the police.

A telegram was sent to the Washington authorities, requesting that McHenry's room be searched in an effort to find the promissory note alleged to have been given to McHenry by Forney. Two hours later a reply was received, saying that the note had been found and that was being sent to the Pittsburgh authorities.

Forney and McHenry will have a hearing Wednesday on charges of felonious assault and battery with intent to kill.

DOCTOR OBTAINS DIVORCE

Former Wife Says She Doesn't Expect to Move From His Home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ohmann-Dumesnil from whom Dr. Amanj Henri Ohmann-Dumesnil obtained a divorce by default in Judge Arnold's court yesterday, is continuing to reside in the doctor's home at 366 Lincoln avenue.

She was not in court when the case was heard. This she afterward explained because she did not know the case was to be tried yesterday. Dr. Ohmann-Dumesnil obtained the divorce on testimony that she was quarrelsome and nagged him. She told reporters this morning she would endeavor to have the decree set aside. She said she expected to continue to reside in the Lincoln avenue home.

FRANCIS TRYING TO STRANGLE SCHOOL, ROLLA MEN SAY

Former Governor and A. Ross Hill Blamed Chiefly for Troubles at School of Mines.

Behind the mandamus suit of the Rolla School of Mines, filed in the Supreme Court at Jefferson City today, against the Board of Curators of the Missouri University to compel the board to permit the School of Mines to issue the degrees authorized by the Buford law enacted by the last Legislature, lies the charge of Rolla citizens that David R. Francis, president of the Board of Curators, in combination with A. Ross Hill, president of the university, is trying to strangle the School of Mines, in which the State of Missouri and the United States Government have invested more than $1,500,000 in buildings and equipment.

The Francis faction of the Board of Curators, after copies of the petition were served on them in a meeting at the Planters Hotel yesterday, announced that the suit was to be a friendly proceeding to determine the constitutionality of the Buford law, but there was nothing of a friendly nature apparent in the warlike attitude of the Rolla citizens who came to St. Louis to watch the outcome of the meeting.

As spokesman for the Rolla citizens, Joseph Campbell, a business man, and R. H. Rucker, lawyer, declared that the Board of Curators, at a recent meeting in Columbia, arrogated to itself the authority of a court, and by a vote of 3 to 4, passed a resolution declaring the Buford law unconstitutional and refused to abide by its provisions. This law provides that the School of Mines shall confer the degrees of mining, civil, chemical and mechanical engineering.

Ticketing Is Charged. Prior to 1909 the School of Mines had authority to confer these degrees, according to Campbell and Rucker, but the authority to issue chemical and mechanical engineering degrees was revised out of the statutes in the revision of that year. A Columbia professor, Campbell and Rucker assert, was responsible for the tampering with the statutes which curtailed the powers of the Rolla institution.

Rucker and Campbell declared that Francis was the leader in the movement to destroy the usefulness of the School of Mines. The law which the Francis faction of the board attempted to set aside without a court hearing was passed by the almost unanimous vote of the General Assembly, then being only four votes against it in the Senate and 23 in the House of Representatives, according to Campbell and Rucker. The members of the Board of Curators who voted with Francis to ignore the law were Sen. Joseph J. C. Parrish of Vandalia and C. B. Rollins of Columbia. Those who voted to comply with the law were Judge A. D. Norton of St. Louis, H. B. McDaniel of Springfield, John H. Bradley of Kennett and Dr. E. L. Baysinger of Rolla.

There has been a sustained effort for many years, according to Rucker and Campbell, to destroy the usefulness of the School of Mines. This fight was on in 1910, at the time of the senatorial election in which James A. Reed and Francis were the contestants for the Democratic nomination.

Francis Leader in Fight. "Francis had been one of the leaders in the fight against us," Rucker said. "The sentiment of Phelps County was almost unanimous for Reed for Senator. But as Francis was a member of the Board of Curators we believed that it would further add to our troubles if Phelps County went against him. The political leaders got together and decided that, without the consent, they would throw the vote of Phelps County to Francis. Reed consented, saying that he could beat Francis any way. We had an awful fight to stem the Reed tide, but we succeeded in delivering the county to Francis by a small majority. "Although Reed was my personal choice for Senator, I did all I could in Phelps County for Francis. But in the gubernatorial contest of 1912 I was for Coward for Governor, as against Major. As everybody knows, Francis fought Coward because Coward, a life-long friend of Reed, had made a speech for Reed during the senatorial contest. Francis never forgave Coward and wanted to punish all of Coward's friends. I had been a member of the Democratic State Committee for several years, but when the question of my re-election came up I found that Francis had sent telegrams to the delegates of my district advising that under no circumstances should I be re-elected. "It was expected by the Rolla people yesterday that Dr. Baysinger as chairman of the Executive Committee of the School of Mines. The Executive Committee had the catalogue of the School of Mines printed to include the degrees authorized by the Buford law. Francis sent a telegram to Dr. Baysinger warning him not to let the catalogue go out. Baysinger defied Francis and caused 200 of the catalogues to be put into the mails. He also sent word to Francis that he was going to obey the Buford law, and would recognize no order from Francis not in conformity with that law. The curators, however, took no action against Baysinger.

Rucker and Campbell assert that Dr. Hill, president of the University, and which is a branch of the University, has done everything in his power to strangle the School of Mines. Several years ago he wanted to remove the engineering school from Rolla to Columbia and substitute an industrial school at Rolla. Rolla citizens inspected the industrial schools of other states, and rejected Hill's proposition.

In his fight upon the School of Mines they declare that Hill has always had the support of Francis. "Francis poses as a great friend of the Missouri University," Rucker said, "and it is a strange fact that he has never sent one of them to the Missouri University, but always an Eastern college."

AUTOPSY PHYSICIAN SAYS
BLOW KILLED MRS. ALLEN

Now Seems Improbable That Body of Wife of Joliet Warden Will Be Exhumed.

JOLIET, Ill., June 20.—Further investigation of the death of a week ago Sunday of Mrs. Odette Allen, wife of the Warden of the State Prison, was temporarily halted last night until the different persons who have had a hand in the inquiry could decide whether the body should be exhumed for further examination of the wound on the head. The State's Attorney, who is in charge of the case, said that he would determine whether any persons were guilty of murdering Mrs. Allen hinged entirely on whether a cut on Mrs. Allen's head caused death.

Dr. John P. Benson, who performed the autopsy on Mrs. Allen, declared her death was caused by a blow on the head that broke the skull. He said that there could be no mistake in his opinion. The opinion seemed almost unanimous that the body would not be exhumed.

CULEBRA CUT PARTLY FILLED

Slide Closes Channel to Ships Having Draft of More Than 26 Feet.

PANAMA, June 20.—The slide on the west side of the Culebra cut section of the Panama Canal north of Contractors' Hill has closed the channel to ships having a draft of more than 26 feet. The passenger ship Kronland, which draws 25 feet, has been delayed in sailing, but it is expected that she will depart today.

The slide, though only a temporary one, is regarded as the forerunner of an important earth movement along the entire west bank.

JUDGE FISHER WILL NOT INVITE DIVEBISS HERE

Declines Offer of Latter to Show
How Tax-Dodging Inquiry
Can Be Conducted.

Circuit Judge Fisher, in charge of the June grand jury, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he would not invite Judge Frank P. Divebiss of Richmond, Mo., to St. Louis to conduct a grand jury investigation into tax-dodging.

In a recent interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter Judge Fisher declared that Judge Divebiss was a "four-flusher," and that he was trying to make a little folk or Hadley of himself in his race for the governorship. Judge Divebiss responded by saying that if Judge Fisher would invite him to St. Louis and put him in charge of the grand jury he would demonstrate how the tax-dodgers could be forced to make truthful returns on their personal property.

Judge Fisher said that he did not wish to have anything more to say relative to Judge Divebiss. Other judges who have had charge of the grand jury told a Post-Dispatch reporter that there was no law authorizing the bringing of an outside judge into another circuit, and that it could be done merely by invitation.

Could Invite Divebiss Here.

The law would permit Judge Fisher, if he felt inclined, to invite Judge Divebiss to St. Louis to take charge of the grand jury. But other judges said even if Judge Divebiss should come here, on invitation, the grand jury could, if it wished, ignore any instruction which he might give.

Judge Divebiss, by long-distance telephone, confirmed the views of the local judges, but he said that he had never had a grand jury refuse to follow out his instructions in the matter of investigating tax-dodging. The court could order an investigation of the grand jury for failure to carry out its instructions, he said.

Circuit Attorney Harvey, who usually directs the activities of the grand jury, has indicated that he was unwilling to conduct a tax-dodging investigation. Preliminary investigations of matter presented to the grand jury usually are made by the Circuit Attorney, who hears the statements of witnesses, and has subpoenas issued for such witnesses as are necessary to lay the facts before the grand jury.

The grand jury also informed Judge Harvey, when he presented the question of tax-dodging to its members, that it did not wish to undertake an investigation.

Many Commit Perjury.

The Post-Dispatch has shown, by a comparison of the inventories of estates with tax returns that millions of dollars' worth of personal property escapes taxation in St. Louis every year because no return is made of it to the Assessor. Under the law taxpayers are required to make returns of their personal property to the Assessor, and to make oath to the truthfulness of their returns.

It is apparent from the returns made to the assessor on personal property that many taxpayers commit perjury. For this they could be indicted, prosecuted and punished. The experience of Judge Divebiss in his district, comprised of Ray, Carroll and Clay counties, was that the indictment of some of the leading tax-dodgers caused others to fear similar prosecutions and resulted in an increase of $5,000,000 in the personal tax assessments of the three counties.

HUGE GERMAN AEROPLANE NOT NEW TYPE LONDON IS TOLD

"Eye Witness" Says That Both England and France Have Experienced
With Same Sort of Machine.

LONDON, June 20.—Commenting upon the story of the British "eye witness" of the duel in the air between a British aeroplane and a huge German biplane of a new type, the military expert of the Daily News declares that this type of machine does not mean that the Germans again have stolen a march in the development of a new weapon.

Huge aeroplanes of this general type have been known for some years past and have been under construction and experiment, both in England and France.

The best-known machine of this type, the new "winner" remarks, is the Russian Sikorsky biplane, which is driven by four 100-horsepower motors and can carry aloft a crew of a dozen men. This machine, however, like all the other huge aeroplanes, he declares, has not yet emerged from the experimental stage, its fatal defects being comparatively low speed, poor maneuvering ability and extremely slow climbing rate.

THIS RYAN? NO, NOT RYAN! BRYAN, B, FOR BRYAN, W. J. OF WASHINGTON AV.

Ex-Secretary Has Hard Time in Chicago Getting His Name Through the Phone.

CHICAGO, June 28.—William Jennings Bryan is in politics to stay so long as the big question was asked him.

"Will you remain in politics, Mr. Bryan?" Then the speaker of parables spoke this wise, saying: "Once upon a time a tenderfoot journeyed into the South on a hunting expedition. He lost his way in the backwoods. Presently he came upon an old man. The tenderfoot said: 'Hello.' The old man said: 'Hello.' The tenderfoot said: 'Have you lived here all your life?' The old man replied: 'Not yet.' Bryan hesitated a moment to observe the effect of the parable on his auditors.

Then the stern look on his face slowly dissolved into the great smile, and he added: "I began taking an interest in politics when about 12 years of age. I expect to sustain that interest so long as I live. I am not a prophet, and I don't tell what future that interest will take, but I shall ever retain a lively interest in what we term politics."

Then the Commoner amplified his general ambitions: "Two Ways of Earning a Livelihood," he said. "One is by lecturing and the other by writing. I figure that I will have to devote about three months of every year lecturing to bring in the income that will be required to keep my affairs going. The other nine months of the year will be employed in writing."

most part as exigencies and opportunities arise. "I hope soon to engage in the realization of an ambition formed many years ago before I ran for Congress the first time. That ambition was to return to the college and lecture to the young men on the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. I say, I had hoped to do that many, many years ago, but it seems that unforeseen contingencies and other things intervened and caused it to be put off."

Bryan smiled again. Among the "unforeseen contingencies," no doubt were his running for President on three memorable occasions. "But now," he continued, "it seems that I will be returning to the campus and take up the work I have had in mind so long."

Asked about the report that he had been responsible for the Mexican policy of "watchful waiting" and that the President had disagreed with him, Bryan referred to the President's letter as showing that the only friction was over European questions.

"Yes, Bryan, B-r-y-a-n, W. J."

Then Bryan inquired if he could reach former Mayor Harrison. He was told the telephone number and immediately called the former Mayor's home.

The hotel end of the conversation was as follows: "Hello. Is this Mr. Harrison's residence? Is Mr. Harrison there? He is in the city? When do you expect him? If he returns before 6 o'clock I wish you would have him call Mr. Bryan at the Annex."

"Yes—Bryan. The initials W. J. Yes—W. J. Bryan. B-r-y-a-n, W. J. Bryan of Lincoln, Neb. Yes—Lincoln, Neb. No, not Ryan, B-r-y-a-n. Tell him I had hoped to see him. Tell him I had hoped to see him. Thank you."

Bryan came here to deliver an address before the Sons of Teutons. When invited it was suggested that he speak on the question of prohibiting the export of war munitions. In accepting he wired that "Peace" would be his topic. After his arrival here he was in conference with the committee in charge of the arrangements for the lecture, following which it was announced that the engagement had been cancelled, but that the society might hear the Nebraska later in the summer.

From Chicago Bryan went to Lincoln, Neb., for a stop between trains, coming from there to San Francisco, where he is to deliver the address at the Fourth of July celebration at the Panama Exposition.

NEW COMMISSION TAKES UP WIDENING OF WASHINGTON AV.

Former Sheriff Nolte on the Board in Place of A. H. Frederick.

The widening of Washington avenue, from Jefferson to Grand avenue, recommended two years ago by the City Plan Commission as the second step in importance to the Central Parkway, for the relief of traffic congestion, again was taken up for consideration by a commission yesterday at a public hearing in the Law Department at the city hall.

The first commission failed to report its recommendation because A. H. Frederick, real estate dealer now serving a 10-year sentence for forgery, was a member. Circuit Judge Withrow recently appointed Louis Nolte, former Sheriff, to succeed Frederick. With the other members, former Judge William B. Homer and Edward A. Rathel, member of the School Board, Nolte will review the exposure of Frederick at the time of his election as President of the new Board of Aldermen.

It is said the old commission had about concluded to award $750,000 damages for property to be taken, all of which would have to be paid under the first plan by property within one block of Washington avenue, from Jefferson to Grand avenues, or out of the city treasury.

Larger District Advised. Under the reorganized commission, a larger benefit district has been advised, extending from Easton and Franklin avenues on the north to Chouteau avenue and Market street on the south, between the river and the western city limits. Any property within this district that is held to be specially benefited by the widening of Washington avenue may be assessed by the Circuit Court on the recommendation of the commission.

The commissioners announced at yesterday's hearing there is no likelihood that benefits will be assessed over much of the proposed district, but under the law the district was made very broad in the advertisement, because it cannot be increased afterward without reopening the entire proceedings and conducting hearings anew.

Commissioner Nolte, the new member, said it was his idea that only abutting property would be benefited by the widening, except downtown, where streets as far north as Franklin avenue would be helped by the diversion of traffic from Locust, Olive, Pine and Chestnut streets, to Washington avenue.

Nolte said it was his idea also that the commission should not distribute a penny of the cost in the shape of special taxes against individual property unless it was clearly shown that a special benefit would be derived by that property. He said he would advocate that the city submit a bond issue to a public vote to pay any costs above that which is assessed as special benefits.

The widening ordinance calls for the cutting of a 10-foot strip from each side of Washington avenue between Jefferson and Grand avenues, to make it 60 feet wide in conformity with its width at present east of Jefferson avenue. At Grand avenue, the city proposes to condemn a triangular strip through the old Campbell home property, 160 feet deep on Grand avenue, north of Washington. This will direct traffic into Washington avenue west of Grand without necessitating the turn at an acute angle, which now impedes it.

Real Estate Men Heard. At yesterday's hearing, Howard Gambrill, Charles Z. Tremblay and other real estate dealers, appeared to oppose special assessment against property of parallel streets on the ground that traffic diverted to Washington avenue would hinder, instead of helping parallel streets.

Peter T. Barret, an attorney, appeared in behalf of Page avenue property owners, to say that his clients would gladly assume special benefit taxes if the widening should be so arranged as to divert traffic to Page avenue. If not, his clients urged the commission not to assess any of the cost against them Barret said.

The commission will conduct hearings at 3 p. m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at the city hall until further notice. It is expected the commission will report its recommendation to the court in the fall.

Man Says He Fears Loss of Mind. A man who said he was Fred J. Campbell, 34 years old, walked into Central District Station about 2 o'clock this morning and said his mind was giving brother, Edward Campbell, living on way. He was sent to the city hospital North King's highway.

WOMAN'S AUTO HITS MAN

Mrs. Gertrude Cromer, Unnerved, Is Taken to Hospital.

Mrs. Gertrude Cromer, 33 years old, of 2674 Blaine avenue, was so unnerved after her automobile had run down a man last night that she had to be taken to St. John's Hospital after friends provided bond for her appearance in court.

Hugo Sellinger, 46 years old, of 4815 Landowne avenue had alighted from a Southampton car at King's highway and was crossing the street at 6:45 o'clock yesterday evening, when the automobile struck him. Sellinger's left arm was fractured and he was bruised. Mrs. Cromer's bond calls for her appearance on a charge of felonious wounding.

PARISIAN SAGE

Ladies who find trouble in properly or attractively arranging and dressing their hair should try using a little Parisian Sage twice daily for a while and note the remarkable improvement. Parisian Sage, which can be obtained at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or any drug counter, makes the hair soft, lustrous, fluffy and wavy, takes out the dull, lifeless appearance, dissolves the dandruff and stimulates the hair roots into healthy normal action. Instead of merely rubbing the hair, it should be rubbed right into the scalp with the finger tips. Parisian Sage is a delightful treatment for both hair and scalp, cannot possibly injure the hair and is very inexpensive.—ADV.

PARK THEATER IS TRANSFORMED INTO A FOLLIES FACTORY

New Revue Promises to Be as Successful as Recent Month Run of "Encores of 1915."

The Park Theater has become a follies factory. A revue called "Midsummer Follies" was manufactured there last week and was given a successful premiere last night before an audience that filled all but the three back rows in the parquet.

Apparently the Park management has found a thing for which Saint Louis willingly pulls his purse-strings. The unusually heavy advance sale for this new revue recalls the four successful weeks of the "Encores of 1915," which the Park Opera company recently had at the Park and Shennandoah Theaters to standing-room-only houses.

In the new offering there is a dash of sentiment and a touch of nonsense. The first part, in three scenes, has to do with the love affairs of the much-sought Anna, a model in a Parisian dress shop. In the role of Anna, Verita Fitzhugh, a St. Louis girl, makes her return appearance as the company's prima donna. Roger Gray, as a man unhappily wed to a woman of the stage type created by George Munroe, appears in a dozen disguises in futile effort to gain Anna's permission to bestow lavish gifts.

It is in the second part that the production resembles the follies Florence Ziegfeld Jr. annually brings to the Olympic. Every principal and some members of the chorus are permitted to participate in vaudeville offerings. There is wholesome humor, slap-stick tomfoolery, sprightly songs and music, good dancing, a score of new novelties, fetching costumes and superb stage settings.

The entire company is nursing bruised knees as a result of several days' practice perfecting themselves for the finale, in which almost the entire company appears on rollers in a skating rink scene in which Rodney Peters and Miss Bacon do remarkable fancy skating on a poor floor. Insistent demands for encores kept the audience until 11:35.

On Thursday bills for the June account of pure milk and free ice furnished babies in the tenement districts of St. Louis will become due. These articles, essential if the lives of the infants in adversity are to be saved, must be paid for, as dairies and ice manufacturers could not reasonably be expected to supply them free.

Payment of the claims is made through the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. The aggregate sum required is not a mere trifle, in view of the fact that a greater number of babies than in previous years at this season has been provided for, and no one deserving of milk and ice fails to receive them.

No Imposition Practiced.

It is certain that no imposition is practiced upon the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission and the Free Ice and Diet Circle of King's Daughters, whose system of investigation is so well organized and intelligent to admit of deception—indeed, few attempts to impose upon the administration of this benevolence have been made. Every dollar paid out helps some baby in more need. The boys and girls of St. Louis are too deeply in earnest in sustaining the cause to permit it to languish for lack of means.

Response to the letter mailed Saturday to each of the members of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice League has been prompt and strongly reassuring. The replies have come by mail and telephone, most of them containing the declaration that steps already have been taken to duplicate or enlarge upon the sums raised last year, and also the promise of endeavor to enlist additional workers.

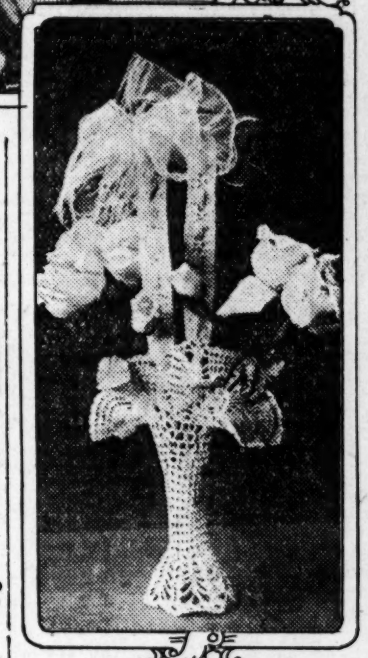

Altogether, the situation and outlook are such as to strengthen the confidence of the Post-Dispatch, declared early in the campaign, that 1915 would prove the season of greatest achievement in the saving of the babies.

Children's Entertainment Nets $3.

At the home of Roy Glasche, 4219 Garfield avenue, Sunday night a carnival was given, in which active sprits were the little worker named, William Lipman, Lawrence Debert and Sarah Schanden, $3 being realized from the sale of ice cream, lemonade, cakes, pineapple and other articles. The sum would have been substantially larger but for the rain, which drove the children indoors and stopped the flow of older persons cheerfully responding to their invitations, to aid in a cause to which none can turn a deaf ear.

Sadie Dress of 4255 Cook avenue, 12 years old, through the sale of lemonade, candy, etc., raised $2 for the fund, but says she is not content to let that contribution stand as her record for the season.

At the home of Miss Virginia Becker, 265 Longfellow boulevard, two little plays, "A Pennsylvania Incident" and "Colonel Virginia" were given by the hostess and Misses Virginia Johnson, Irene Ware, Mildred North and Alice Judd, the proceeds amounting to $2. The dramatic productions were delightfully staged and acted.

Miss Louise Alford Melven, 15-year-old daughter of C. B. Melven of 5744A Etzel avenue, has earned $3 for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund by disposing of a crocheted basket filled with flowers, both the product of her talent and skill.

Miss Melven has achieved considerable fame in her neighborhood by her deftness in crocheting flower baskets and, by giving them a treatment with sugar and water, imparting the softness that is needed. In these baskets she places the flowers, which she also makes, and the effect is strikingly beautiful.

"Roomers and Runners."

A full-dress rehearsal, which at the same time afforded entertainment for inmates of the industrial school, was given of the three-act comedy, "Roomers and Runners," which is to have its elaborate production Friday night at Knights of Columbus Hall, Grand avenue and Olive street, for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. The performance evidenced marked talent and study on the part of the 11 popular amateurs in the cast.

Another benefit entertainment scheduled for Friday evening is a stereoscopic and moving picture lecture on the California Expositions and the Golden West, at the Hamilton Avenue Christian Church, Hamilton and Julian avenues, by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. Following the entertainment there will be a social.

Arizona Temperance Bills Die.

PHOENIX, Ariz., June 28.—After six months of almost continuous deliberation, the second special session of the Legislature adjourned last night without enacting any temperance laws included in the call of Gov. Hunt. The Temperance Federation will rest its case on the constitutional amendment for State-wide prohibition which is now in force.

MISS CHARLOTTE BOECKLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Boeckler of 4121 Laclede avenue, one of the debutantes of last winter, was married this morning at 10 o'clock to Russell O. Leftwich by the Rev. Father Francis Giffulan of the New Cathedral parish.

It was a quiet wedding with only the nearest relatives present. The bride and her cousin, Miss Elise Boeckler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Boeckler, for her maid of honor, and Robert Cross Flanagan of Minneapolis was Mr. Leftwich's groomsmen.

The bride wore a traveling gown of sand-colored cloth, a smart little black hat trimmed with gaura, and she wore a corsage bouquet of orchids. The bridegroom wore a frock of blue taffeta silk, a big black hat and wore a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Directly after the breakfast, following the ceremony, Mr. Leftwich and his bride departed for Chicago and Lake Geneva, Wis. On their return they will reside at 609 Clara avenue.

The bride was one of the maids of honor of the Velled Prophet's ball last autumn, when she made her first formal bow to society. She had been one of the belles of the season and has been noticeable as one of the most stylish and best dressed girls in her set. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Bennett's school in Millbrook, N. Y.

Mr. Leftwich is the son of the late William M. Leftwich. His mother was formerly Miss Susan Mullhall. His sisters are Miss Aurelia Leftwich and Mrs. H. E. Hagar.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Tower Jr. of 27 Vandeventer place, their daughter, Miss Margaret Tower, and Mrs. Tower's mother, Mrs. J. B. M. Kehler, have gone to California, where they have taken a house at Montecito for the summer. They have shipped three motor cars and will make a tour while there.

Mrs. C. Hunt Turner of the Raymuth Apartments will depart July 7 for Virginia to visit her mother, Mrs. Benjamin O'Fallon, at "Red Gate" near Boyce. Her little daughters, Lucy and Margaret Turner, are already there, and Mrs. Charles Mullikin of Washington, another daughter of Mrs. O'Fallon, also is a guest at "Red Gate."

Mr. and Mrs. Elliot K. Ludington of 24 Washington terrace and their family departed today at noon for the East to remain all summer. They will send their boys, Francis and Elliot Kingman Jr., to Kill Kare Kamp in Vermont, and then they and their small daughter, Miss Florence, will go to New York, Philadelphia and to Buzzard's Bay.

Cheer up! When things look black. Phone Chapman, Dry Cleaning, Dyeing.

Grover Lowdermilk Couldn't Wait Until July 4---He Exploded Yesterday

HUGGINS SHOULD IMITATE F. JONES, CRITICS BELIEVE

Manager of the Cardinals Seems Too Lenient in His Treatment of Pitchers.

"HOOK" IS OFTEN NEEDED

But St. Louis Leader Is Prone to Let Twirler Remain In Until It's Too Late.

By W. J. O'Connor.

Dave Davenport is and has been the most dependable pitcher on Fielder Jones' team. Dave wheeled into the eighth inning yesterday, having a three-run lead. The first man up in the eighth singled. The next man forced him.

Out came Mr. Davenport. Groom went in and was peppered for a double, but to mention a walk, making the score 7-6. But Groom then settled down and won the game by that same thin margin.

They do say that Fielder Jones is hard on his pitchers. He shows absolutely no patience, no leniency and will call for blankets for his best bet the minute the opposition gets on. Rough stuff, perhaps. But Jones is on top of the Federal League pennant scramble and where lives the man who would sprinkle harsh words on Fielder's cook?

Take another case of managerial discretion "close to home": Miller Huggins, for instance. Miller galloped into the ninth inning of the Chicago game the other day, carrying a three-run lead and lost it because he took a chance with Hubbard Partridge, the Gallatin Squash, and had nobody warmed up for emergency duty. Hugg's alibi was that he didn't care to break the continuity of turn among the regular boxmen. The Cards are in second place.

Huggins' Policy vs. Jones'. Now, 'tis said in this instance that Mr. Huggins is too lenient with his pitchers. Too careful; overly solicitous, and all that sort of thing. We know that on last Thursday, after the Cards had kicked off that 14-13 scream to the Cubs, there was a heap of fans who played the hot brand of criticism on Hugg's little bean.

What would Fielder Jones do in that ninth inning? said one of the rabble. "What would he do, eh? Well, I'll tell you. He'd have every pitcher worthy of the name warmed up and just as soon as they got one hit off a hurler, he would come on. He'd pitch left-handers against left-handers and right-handers against right-handers. The chances are he would have won."

This whiff of a little late. The cause of it all happened last week; but we went out to see Huggins last night, and he was so perturbed about his pitchers. He was a whole flock of double-headers on the schedule, starting with one today, another tomorrow and still another next Monday, and he mentions one following Thursday.

Huggins Has Pitching Problem. "If my pitchers hold out we will win our share of the pennant," said Hugg. "but just now I'm not crazy about the way the pitchers are working."

Neither are we, Hugg, old top. Our solution for the problem is to make them work harder. And also polish up the old hook and exercise the recall with more reckless abandon. A geek named Watson, hitherto unknown, pitched the last seven frames of a game for Fielder Jones the other day and won it. He came back the next day and won two more rounds and won again. He went nine hits in seven innings and four in nine.

Of course, the Cards may not be as fast as the Nationals. That's a question for disputation. But Watson worked on successive days and begged the Cardinals to let him pitch. Why can't the Cardinals curvists do likewise? How about that quartet of regulars? Is it "the quartette"—one pitcher and three tenors?

There's something radically wrong and the fans won't appreciate any trifling, now that the Cards have a pennant look-in.

All N. L. Teams Spineless. However, let this much be said for the Cards: They're doing no worse than seven other N. L. clubs. No team in the circuit has yet evinced anything that remotely resembles a pennant punch. The Cubs took three out of four from the Cards, their nearest competitors. The Braves slipped off a pair to Cincinnati; the hated tall-ender. The Braves after a flake from Brooklyn, dropped both ends of a double-header to the Giants.

There's nothing like a sustained effort being put forth. Now that the Cardinals are in the White Sox who are moving away from the A. L. field with a steady, powerful pull.

It is true, though, that the Cardinals said last night in a press conference that they were not making a substantial effort to land a pitcher. And yet the visiting section says that the Cards are making a better business than many other clubs in the circuit. What's the idea, Skip?

O'Leary Regains Right Title.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 29.—Johnny O'Leary of Seattle is again lightweight champion of Canada by virtue of his victory last night over "Rough House" Charley Burns, whom he defeated on points after 10 rounds.

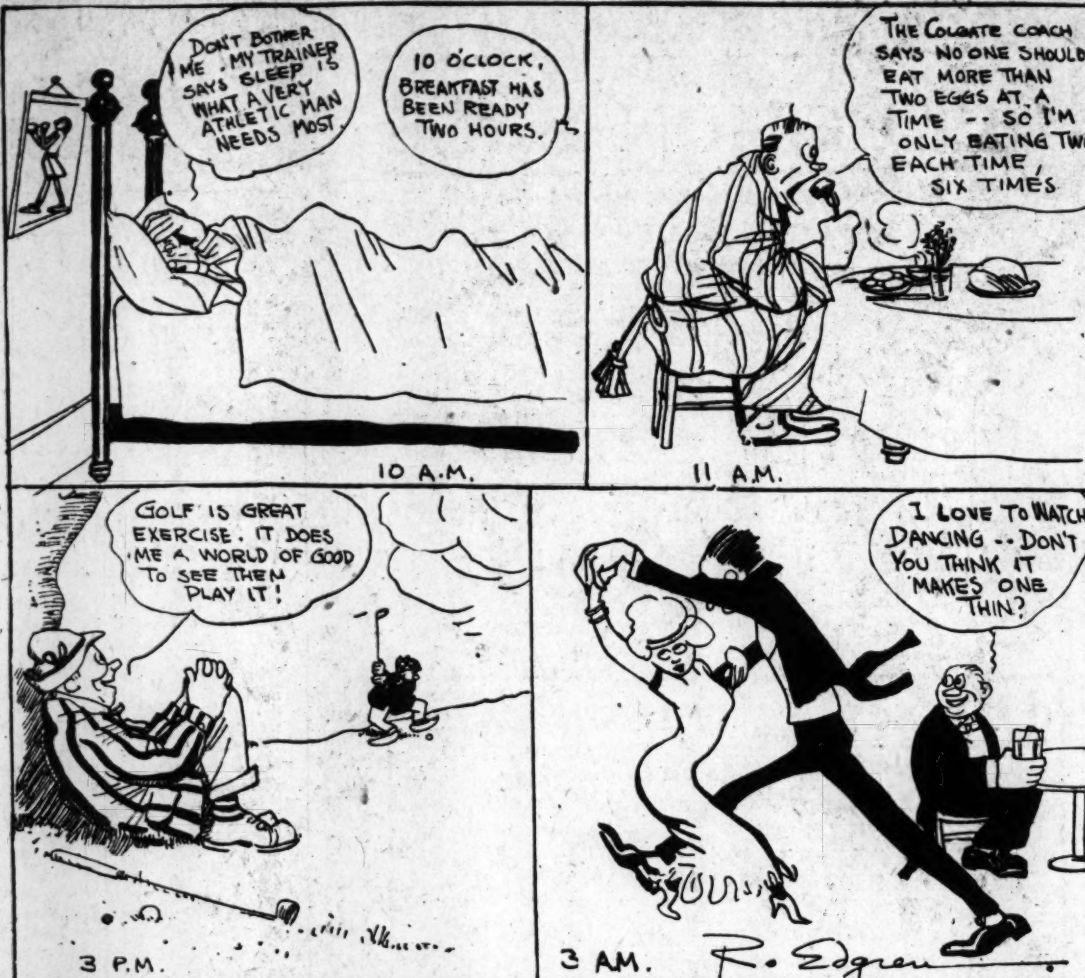

Fans 32 in 19 Innings.

SPOKANE, Wyo., June 29.—Elmer Luffer, a left-handed pitcher of Elmer Wash, set a new record yesterday for most fans in a game. The crowd at the west at least, when in a 19-inning game at Malden, Wash., he struck out 32 batsmen.

Another Triple With Full House, Swamps Browns

Sunday Eddie Collins Landed K O While Yesterday It Was Happy Felsch.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Triples, with the bases full, seem to be the downfall of the Browns' pitchers in this city. A three-pitcher away by Eddie Collins with the sacks crowded beat Bill James Sunday. Yesterday "Happy" Felsch banged out a three-bagger with Schalk, Blackburn and Scott on the bases, off Lowdermilk, in the third inning. Felsch later counted on Weaver's hit and the Sox won, 4 to 2.

George Sisler, the former University of Michigan star, hurled the last three innings for the Browns and was found for two hits. He also made a single. The Browns' first run off Scott came in the first on Shotton's double, Austin's sacrifice and single by Pratt. Doubles by Lear and Lavan gave the second one in the eighth.

It probably will be Earl Hamilton against Urban Paber for the third clash of the series this afternoon. Ivan Howard, the Browns' infielder, who was spiked Sunday, has been sent home. He will be missing a month.

SPORT SALAD BY L.C. DAVIS.

On to Buffalo.

ONCE more the Terriers neatly trimmed. The crew of Otto Knabe, our old friend Long Dave Davenport was Jerry to the job. The final score was seven-six. The finish was quite thrilling. Today they show in Buffalo. Where they will make a killing.

Honk! Honk! THE Browns lost another game. As was to be expected; in spite of that, the Rockies. The subject of derision: Those Gloomy Guesses Browns are now the subject of derision. But they'll improve. Right into first division.

Can't Stop the Cards. THE Cardinals moved up a notch. Although the team was idle; Our boys are lined up at the post and tugging at the bridle. We'll have another tidal wave. According to the paper: With cabaret. Is quite the latest caper.

Forecast. Tuesday: showers followed by rain. Wednesday: same as Tuesday. Not having had a scrap for several days, Harry Treadwell and Leo Kelly will don the mitts this evening.

In the matter of going on forever, the well and favorably known proverb has nothing on Harry and Leo. Connie Mack has snared a new infielder but he didn't trap him in Trappe.

Walter Johnson hasn't allowed a run in the last 18 innings he has pitched. It's pitiful to see the way that boy is going back. Don't Bet on This. Looks like Connie Mack insists on having either the best team in the world or the worst. This is his worst year.

Christy Mathewson, another old spay, won an 11-inning game at Brooklyn. Bad year for the old timers.

The Terriers are holding on to first place with bull-dog tenacity. Every dog has his day. Last year the Terriers had too many nights.

Connie Mack seems determined to hold the cellar against the combined attack of the Browns and Indians.

Matty Wins Second Straight Game; Hug to Use Doak and Meadows Today

IT'S a great old race in the National. There are only eight and one-half games between the pace-making Cubs and the Superbas and Reds, who bring up the rear. And the race tightened up a little yesterday when the Giants took a double fall out of the Braves, who are having their troubles with Evans and James on the staff.

Matty won the first game, 3-2, from Pat Ragan. Matty now has won two in a row, both by the score of three to one. He has now won three in a row, all but the last one by a conquest over the Cards. If the Old Master stays on the job, the Giants are sure to climb. He's the keynote of success always on McGraw's team.

Today the Cardinals put on a bargain show to music for the benefit of those famished fans who have gone since last week ago Sunday without a major league battle. To be exact it has been nine days since they perpetrated any national pastime, locally. So what's more fitting than a double-header. We'll all be surprised by the time.

Bill Doak is slated to hurl the first game, and Harry Treadwell will be the premier pitcher of the Pirates just now. If Doak survives, Hug will take a break with Meadows in the final game and probably will have Babe Adams to shoot at. Play at 2 o'clock.

Local Poloists to Compete in Chicago Tourney

Western Championships, Originally Scheduled Here to Be Held at Onwentsia.

CHICAGO, June 29.—The Western polo tournament will be held at Onwentsia, starting one week from tomorrow and lasting five days. Two teams will represent Onwentsia, while St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago will have one team each in the competition. It is probable that Denver also will enter.

Kansas City is the present champion of the West, having won the honors last year. The contestants were originally set for St. Louis, but at the last moment they were changed to this city.

The Onwentsia players were badly handicapped this season by heavy grounds. Due to the rain, they have been getting a lot of practice the last few weeks, with the result that they will be in fair shape for the contest.

The other teams also have been unable to get as much practice as usual. Kansas City has suffered the same fate as the others and on its showing last year should be the favorite.

The Onwentsia players, however, mean to give them a hard battle for the honors. The two teams which will be selected from among the players at Lake Forest will be named by the end of the week.

Advantage of Current Helped Cornellians Win, Stanford Coach Thinks
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 29.—Following the variety rowing race yesterday, Coach Guernsey of the Leland Stanford crew said:

"My boys made a wonderful showing in fighting Cornell to a finish and coming within a few feet of winning the race. There has been a lot of criticism of my crew and its style of rowing and we have been regarded as jokes by some of the Easterners. But we showed them just how strong and game an eight Stanford can produce under all the adverse circumstances of the season."

I honestly believe that if we had been rowing in the position of either Syracuse or Cornell, further out in the river, and had enjoyed the advantages of tide and current, they had, we would have won the race. Look out for Leland Stanford next time."

WESTERN R. C. WILL HOLD 5-MILE SWIM ON JULY 25
The fifth annual five-mile handicap river swim of the Western Rowing Club will be held on July 25. The event has been sanctioned by the A. A. U. and only registered athletes will be allowed to compete.

Following the variety rowing race yesterday, Coach Guernsey of the Leland Stanford crew said:

McGraw is shifting his players recklessly. He used Grant on third in the first game and then put him on first in the second game. McGraw is a real strategist.

Ray Fisher subdued the Red Sox, 3-2, but Connie Mack's team won the game in the second game and Carriagan's crew raised an even break.

Half-Coached Stanford Crew Barely Beaten by Perfect Cornell Stroke

Trained on a Muddy Slough, 3000 Miles From Home and Possessing a Faulty Rowing Form, Pacific Coast Giants Might Have Beaten Courtney's Machine in Half Mile More.

By Joe O'Neill, A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OUT in California, not a great way from the Panama Exposition, there's a place natively known as the Oakland Slough (pronounced slow).

It's a muddy, smelly, place, muddier, we St. Louisians are told than the "good old Mississippi" after the Missouri has done its worst; smellier the same exiles on a hot summer night. More than that, it's only two miles long, so far as navigability goes, in the matter of rowing an eight-oared shell. You start to row, in the slow, with the keel of your boat scraping the mud bottom. You wing up your two miles before you get to the end of the slough. The old Oakland Slough has taken its place among the most famous bodies of water that irrigate the fair land of California.

For the crew of Leland Stanford University, which learned all its rowing upon the slough's unfragrant and dark brown surface, came within a few heart-breaking oar-pulls of defeating the pick of the clear water crews of the East in the annual Poughkeepsie regatta yesterday.

Cornell's 68-Year Old Coach Is Nervous Wreck From Worry Over Crews

CHARLES E. COURTNEY'S career of turning out winning crews for Cornell University, it is believed, ended, when the hoodoo thirteenth triumph in 21 years was gained yesterday by the protégés of the famous rowing coach.

Courtney is a nervous wreck. He is in such a broken physical condition as a result of the strain under which he has been laboring to re-establish himself in the rowing world as a winner and plans are under way to send him to a hospital.

Such an achievement as his Cornell varsity and junior crews attained naturally would bring joy and gladness, but the old man collapsed under the strain.

Courtney has just passed his sixtieth birthday. There is no doubt that he was worked up over the outcome of the race. Looking back the past two years' contests had worn him much and his present breakdown likely means his last days as a Cornell coach.

MISS BURNETT TO COMPETE IN INDIANAPOLIS EVENTS

Cornell Has Close Call.
There must have been some fearful rickety years in the Cornell boat (if the men could see out of their sweat-blinded eyes) as through the last mile they watched that Western shell edging the line in the lead. The Cornell boat, the last they were only a little more than the length of one of those big California chaps-eared fish behind.

And there must have been inward rejoicing unlimited, for Cornell, when the cannon at the stake boat at the finishing point roared the news that the struggle was over. For had it gone another half mile, even another quarter, the pointed nose of the Stanford boat in all likelihood would have shown in front.

The victory went to Cornell. But the glory went to the Cornell boat. The victory went to Cornell. But the glory went to the Cornell boat.

EVEN BREAK WITH BISONS WILL KEEP TERRIERS ON TOP.

Fielder Jones Will Be First Local Manager to Return in Lead Since 1908.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 29.—Manager Jones and his boys are at Buffalo today for their last stop in the Eastern swing of the Federal circuit. That the Fielders shook off the dust of Baltimore in a happy mood is naturally expected even though it is a fact that they managed to get but three out of five there after cleaning up in Brooklyn and Newark.

Three victories in five starts is championship ball away from a team's own back yard and the entire series furnishes an example of the Federal circuit reason for seeing why the St. Louis bunch is holding its present high position in the chase for the Gilmore hunting.

The chances are that Jones will see Watson to open the series against Buffalo today. Groom was booked for this series and the Federal circuit to relieve Davenport yesterday in the eighth, this program was knocked out.

Jones Isn't Lenient.
Speaking of this brings to mind the fact that fans generally felt that Jones did not show much patience.

During the Eastern series, comparisons with other clubs in the league have been freely made by fans and critics and the general expression of opinion was that Jones might have let the tall youngster in without any worry. As it was, Groom was in rather serious straits during the short time he was on the hill and Jones probably regretted his action soon after Bob went to work.

INSPECTOR THINKS WOMAN STABBED 20 TIMES KILLED SELF

Can't Account, 'However, for Wounds in Back of Mrs. W. H. Fox, Wife of Former St. Louisan.

NEW YORK, June 29.—After working all night with 20 detectives under him, on the mysterious death of Mrs. Grace Fox, who was found with 20 stab wounds in her body in her apartment on the third floor of Beacon Hall, 618 West 143d street, late yesterday afternoon, Inspector Joseph A. Faurot, said today he believed the woman had killed herself. Mrs. Fox was the wife of William H. Fox, manager of the Fourteenth street branch of the National Cash Register Co. He is a brother of the late Della Fox, the actress, and formerly lived in St. Louis. Mrs. Fox's activity in the case, however, belied his suicide announcement. Fingerprint experts from headquarters went through the Fox flat and down the fire escape leading from it, and took many impressions. Men from the homicide squad searched through the neighborhood during the night and early morning, questioning those employed in stores and apartment houses and halting suspicious looking persons.

"There are stab wounds in Mrs. Fox's back," said Faurot at the Bellevue Morgue this morning. "But despite this I believe she committed suicide. There is a great element of mystery in the case. It is one of the strangest I have ever had to deal with."

Detectives working under Faurot said it was the theory that Mrs. Fox was murdered either for revenge or by a man of the "ripper" type. In any event, robbery was not the motive.

GERMANY NOT YET READY FOR PEACE, SAYS NEWSPAPER

Cincinnati Freie Presse Declares She Must Be Secured Against Attacks.

CINCINNATI, June 29.—Commenting on the peace appeal of the Berlin Vorwaerts, the Freie Presse (German) says: "Germany's enemies started the present conflict as a war of conquest; they do not even trouble themselves to deny this fact. And having been forced into the war, the German Empire must see to it that it shall be made secure against any repetition. Germany is no doubt ready to conclude peace, under this condition, however, is not desired."

"The time has not as yet come for such a peace. It is true, Germany and her ally have been victorious so far along the entire line, but the last decisive battles which will force its enemies to sue for peace are still to be fought. For this reason the Vorwaerts' appeal is premature and unwelcome."

"The Vorwaerts will soon learn that the German people are not willing to let printer's ink destroy what has been achieved by stream of German blood on the battle field. Germany must find means to surround its borders with such protection that no enemy will ever again dare to attack her."

The Volksblatt says that for military reasons as well as because of its sympathetic population, Russian Courland should be annexed to Germany. The Volksblatt also favors the annexation of such territory as will make Germany's position safe on the English Channel.

COMPLAINT MADE THAT PLAYGROUND SWINGS ARE STORED

Souland Association Also Asks for More Lights and Protest Against Early Closing.

A remonstrance signed by 350 members of the Eighth Ward Playground and Souland Market Association, complaining that the swings, see-saws and maypole apparatus are stored in a public comfort station instead of being put in use by the recreation branch of the Park Department, will be presented to Mayor Kiel upon his return to the city. The petitioners also ask that more lights be installed and that the grounds be kept open for children until 10 p. m. instead of closing at 9 o'clock, the current hour.

Park Commissioner Cunliff, when shown a copy of the complaint petition today, said he would immediately order the swings and see-saw apparatus put in use and that these facilities had only been dismantled last summer at the request of boys on the Souland playground, who said the swings interfered with their baseball game.

Frames in Position.

The iron frames supporting the swings, and the see-saw supports are in position, Cunliff said, but the apparatus was stored in order to keep the smaller children off the western portion of the playground. The Souland Playground consists of two city blocks between Seventh and Ninth, Souland and Julia streets. On the eastern block there had been swings, see-saws and a circle swing called a maypole, in operation. Cunliff said he received only one complaint against the discontinuance of the swings and see-saws, and that reached him only last week.

G. J. Steiner, 1627 South Ninth street, secretary of the Playground and Market Association, who will present the petition to Mayor Kiel, said the arrangement of the playground and its management has proved unsatisfactory to residents in many ways. There were no lights at the playground until a week ago, when the first neighborhood dance was conducted by the p. k. department, Steiner said. An arc light was installed for this function, and is still in use, but only one other arc was placed on the adjacent lot, and the two are not sufficient to light the ground, he pointed out.

"Keep Off the Grass" Signs.

Steiner said the ground keeper has posted "keep off the grass" signs and has clashed with some of the small children who disobeyed this injunction. Park Commissioner Cunliff said the grass is just growing on the playground and children must keep off until it is fully developed or it will not thrive.

Commissioner Cunliff said he considered the Souland playground as well equipped and managed as the average among the 17 playgrounds. It is the largest in area, and it is situated close to a municipal free swimming pool and bathhouse and a branch library.

DAUES QUESTIONS RIGHT OF POLICE TO 50-CENT BOND FEE

City Counselor Believes Diversion of Money to Relief Association Is Unconstitutional.

City Counselor Daves was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter today about the right of the police to collect a bond fee of 50 cents from each person admitted to ball at a police station, the practice which was attacked Saturday by Judge Hogan in City Court No. 1 as responsible for wholesale arrests on the streets. He said he believed the collection of such a fee was unconstitutional.

He said that although he had not given the question close study, he believed a decision of the Missouri Supreme Court preventing the collection of witness fees from policemen for the benefit of the association applied to the collection of bond fees.

The Desk Sergeant at each police station collects 50 cents from each person admitted to ball. The Missouri statutes authorize the collection and direct that the money shall go into the fund of the Police Relief Association.

Diversion of Public Money.

It is this section which the Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional in so far as it diverts public money to the pension fund. From the opinion of the Court, there seems no question of the right to collect the bond fee, but the fee appears to be public money when collected.

The decision was rendered in a test case brought in 1912 by the Police Relief Association to mandamus Judge Kimmel to collect a fee of 50 cents for the attendance of each policeman who was a witness in his court. Judge Kimmel refused to collect the witness fee on an opinion from the City Counselor, who was William E. Baird.

Justice Lamm of the Supreme Court, in upholding Judge Kimmel, said: "Whatever may be the public policy of other states under the leading strings of other constitutions, the public policy of this State up to this time is opposed to pensions except for firemen."

"The remedy is a change of the Constitution and it is in vain to seek elsewhere."

Indirect Collections Barred.

"What he is doing indirectly may not be done indirectly or obliquely. If, then, the effect of the legislation in question is to create a pension fund out of the common chest and thereby grant pensions out of the public funds to policemen, the statute questioned cannot be held a constitutional exercise of legislative power in that regard."

City Counselor Daves said that he fully believed that the same rule would apply to the collection of the fee for bonds. He said that as the amount in each case was only 50 cents, it was improbable that any individual would ever question it in the courts, but that it is within the power of the Mayor to question the right of the Police Relief Association to funds belonging to the city.

He said that under his office the Mayor properly could direct the City Counselor to institute proceedings to require the payment of the bond fees into the city treasury instead of into the Police Relief Association fund.

Judge Hogan's Criticism.

The controversy over the bond fee arose as a result of Judge Hogan's remarks Saturday after the releasing of women arrested by the police. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter how every night dozens of women were arrested and that the police did not present evidence in court against them. As a result of this failure, he said, he was required to release them. He expressed the opinion that the arrests were due to a desire to increase the relief association fund by the 50-cent bond fee paid by every woman to avoid remaining in jail over night.

The fund is used to pay death benefits to policemen and to pay sick and accident benefits. Under the rules of the Police Department, every policeman is required to join the association and to pay 50 cents a month dues. The fund is augmented by money derived from benefit entertainments, from a percentage of all rewards received by policemen and from the fees for bonds.

In 1914 the association received $247.50 from bond fees; in 1913, $232.50; and in 1912, $468.50.

FERDINAND PINNEY EARLE'S BROTHER SUE FOR DIVORCE

NEW YORK, June 29.—Another domestic tragedy has occurred in the Earle family. This time the particular Earle to be affected is William Pitt Stryker Earle, a brother of Ferdinand Pinney Earle of affinity fame.

When William P. S. was interviewed some months ago concerning the accreditations of Ferdinand Pinney, he was greatly nettled at the word "affinity," but admitted that a man might be happy with a second, or even a third, spouse.

Mrs. Valeria Dammon De Blaise Earle, wife of William P. S., in a divorce suit alleges that her husband has at least one affinity, and may have more. In fact, she is quite certain he has indulged in two.

Samuel Untermyer, representing the Amateur Committee, opposed the issuance all day, but in the end professed himself satisfied.

The Secret Cause

Believing himself poor, a youth, after a year's hard work, finds his father had really left him a fortune of $12,000,000.

By George Munson.

JOHN had been compelled to leave college after his first year, on account of his father's death. His mother's small annuity was barely sufficient to support her. It was necessary for John to give up his ambition of becoming a physician—for the present, at least—and look for a position.

He had answered an advertisement and had been invited to call. The world looked very cheerful as he surveyed it from his strap in the elevated train.

He was in the way of becoming a business man, John thought. And the girl to whom he had given up his seat could not help smiling, too. It was not a flirtatious smile—just a happy one, because John's happiness infected her, as everyone else who looked at the well-groomed young fellow climbing the strap as the car lurched and swung round the bend.

In the president's office nine young men were being cross-examined. John was the tenth. The president put a few perfunctory questions to the man I consider to be the best suited, and he was announced.

John Lands the Job.

THE young man filed out of the office. Nine of them, knowing their individual chances to be small, looked glum. John was smiling. As he was about to leave, the president called him back.

"You'll do. I like your face," he said. "Your name is Barrett. Any relation of the late Thomas Barrett of the United corporation?"

"He was my father," answered John. "Indeed! And you are not thinking of taking control of the corporation ultimately?"

"My lawyer informed me that my father died heavily in debt," John answered. "In fact, he left my mother only a bare annuity."

"I am surprised to hear that," answered the president. "I thought, well, I am greatly astonished. Everyone thought Mr. Barrett retained the controlling interest. Come to work on Monday."

On the way out John saw the girl of the elevated. She was talking notes for the manager, pencil in hand, book on her knee. She nodded to John. Every one nodded or smiled at the sight of the young fellow. Somehow he radiated good nature.

John smiled all the way home. Ten dollars a week meant a great deal to him and his mother. He was as happy as if he had been left a millionaire.

Some men grin and a few sinner, but six months John had worked his way up to twenty dollars and reasonable responsibilities. He and the girl had lunch together, usually after pay day. Their companionship had come to mean a good deal to them.

Molly was not a highly educated girl, but she had that simplicity and charm that are the fruit of a sweet and happy nature. The first time John invited her to his mother's apartment to tea on a Sunday afternoon Mrs. Barrett knew that the die was cast.

"John, dear," she said that night, looking at him searchingly. "Is she?" She could get no further, but cried on his shoulder.

Molly refused John. They loved with all the frankness of St. Louis. They knew they would always mean everything to each other. John asked Molly to marry him. She refused. And when they had talked things over John saw it in the same light.

"Your mother talks about you all the time," said the girl. "She couldn't support herself on that little income. It makes it impossible for the present, dear."

"She could live with us," Molly shook her head. She was wise enough to know the impracticability of that suggestion.

"But I shall get on with the firm. In a few years I shall be getting thirty-five," John urged.

And then Molly expounded the situation to him as impassively as if she were discussing an abstract proposition. She had steeled herself to this one that right when she had decided that she must give John up forever. And it was that uncanny coldness that engraved the truth on John's heart.

If he married her he must give up forever his hopes of becoming a doctor. It meant all of John's future. It meant his mother's happiness. And she would not sacrifice John to his love.

"In five years," he urged. "Wait for me, Molly. Only wait. Promise me!"

John is laid off. Molly shook her head and then, her calmness deserting her, burst into passionate tears. She sobbed as if her heart was broken.

John put the situation up to a friend as an abstract proposition.

"I should advise you—I mean the man you are telling me of—to see his lawyer," he said. "It is often possible to anticipate a legacy, and if your mother's annuity does not cease with her death the reversion would have a certain cash value at present. That is my advice. See your lawyer!"

John got cold comfort from his lawyer. "Come back in six months," was all he would say. "I'll see what I can do then."

For six dreary months John waited. He saw Molly each day, but she passed him now with only a cold little bow. There was a wariness to come. One day, at the end of the six months, the president called John into his office.

"We've been hard hit by the financial depression, Barrett," he said. "I'm sorry, but we are laying off all the men we can do without, and naturally we are keeping our chief members."

John understood. He consoled up his last smile and left the office.

John Learns the Truth.

MOLLY had promised to meet him the following Sunday to say good-by. On the Saturday afternoon John went to his lawyer, flaring with indignation. He demanded a plain answer to the proposition he had suggested six months before.

"John," said the lawyer, placing a hand on either shoulder of the young man, "your father has been dead just a year yesterday."

"I know," John interposed. "John, there was a clause in his will, known to your mother but not to you. He wanted you to become a man and to gain knowledge of life. You were to leave college in the event of his death, while you were there and take a position. If, after a year, you were, in my opinion, worthy of it, you were to receive entire control of his fortune of twelve millions."

"What?" gasped John. "Your father was especially anxious that you should not make an unhappy marriage," John pursued the old man. "Especially that you should not become a victim of an adventure. He wanted you to find some sweet girl who was ignorant of your wealth. He thought that, if you did not find her within the year, at least you would obtain enough knowledge of the world to—Where are you going, John?"

"I'm going for her," John shouted. "Stay here till I come back. She lives 10 blocks away, and I was to have seen her tomorrow, but this is one of those situations that won't wait."

The Old Red Desk

Sandman story showing that it is often the braggar who is of the least value and who comes to the very worst of ends.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

IT was raining hard. The wind blew and roared around the chimney and the trees bent so low before the storm that their whirling tops had brushed the ground.

Up in the old attic there was a busy buzz of conversation for rainy nights were cozy times to chat. Perhaps you think that only people talk. But that is a mistake. Furniture can speak and the chairs whisper in the midnight silence, though you only smile at what you call the furniture crackling.

"When old things have been put in the garret, they love to talk about bygone days. And how the broken chairs, the lattered trunks chat of their past history. On this particular rainy night the misadventures of articles stored in the big attic at Tudor Grove were having quite a time. Between the gusts of the wind one could hear their queer whispers.

"I have lived a fine life in my day," remarked a tall mirror in a gilt frame that leaned back in a dusty corner. "I was in a ballroom where great ladies and grand gentlemen came to dance before me, and I could catch their reflection in my shining depth."

"Well, I never was in a ballroom," chuckled a smashed trunk whose articles were gone and lock wrenched away, "but I roamed with my owner over the land, even up into far Alaska, where I was packed over the ice on a sled drawn by dogs."

"I have not traveled or lived in ballrooms," chirped a scratched high chair. "I lived in the nursery, and all the children in the family for years have sat in my lap when they ate their dinners. See the marks on my arms, where they beat me with their tiny spoons."

OVER under the slanting roof stood a red desk. Its slender legs seemed almost too weak to hold its trembling weight; cobwebs draped its sides, and over it all was a thick coat of dust.

"Hello, grandpa," shouted the gilt mirror. "What have you got to say for yourself? You look as if you ought to have better days. But do not be afraid to speak up, even if we are your superiors."

"I thank you for your kindness," replied the old desk in a quavering voice. "I am not ashamed of myself at all, so pray do not be condescending."

"Well, will you listen to that conceited old fogey," sneered the mirror. "I wish you to know when you are talking."

"I wish you to know when you are talking," replied the old desk in a quavering voice. "I am not ashamed of myself at all, so pray do not be condescending."

My Wife's Husband

A Domestic-Life Serial.

Chapter XLVIII.

"H, what a pretty car!" Jane exclaimed, when I had attended to the trunks. "Whose is it? One of your patients'?"

"No, it's mine!" I replied, enjoying her surprise. "Yours! How long have you had it?"

"I bought it in June," then. "I'm so glad you like it, Jane. I thought you would."

"You bought it in June, right after I went away? Why didn't you tell me about it when you were up at the lakes?"

"I wanted to surprise you," I answered. "Oh, I see. Well, you've surprised me all right!" Then Jane began to chatter, and nothing more was said until just before we reached home, when Jane asked:

"How did you come to select a blue car? You showed good taste; it is a beautiful shade."

"I answered, not thinking. 'And the car also?' Jane inquired. 'Yes. That is, she helped me decide. She said this car would please you better than some others I tried, because the outline was more graceful. She said that women always thought of those things.'

"So Miss Reese was asked to select my husband's car? Her judgment taken as to the kind of car, even the color, while I, your wife, didn't even know you had a car until it was three months old? I suppose she has ridden in it, too? That would be only natural so long as she selected it."

"Yes, she HAS ridden in it," I answered. "Unreasonable Jane."

"O you had Miss Reese select a car, you and she have been riding together all summer, and now you pretend that you did not tell me because you wanted to surprise me. Surprise me with a car you have been using for three months—using with another woman. I expect, if you were to tell the truth, it would be that you bought it for her!"

"Nonsense, Jane! Do be reasonable!" I thought I am reasonable—more reasonable than you are to expect me to be satisfied with such a story."

"But, Jane, the only reason I did not tell you of the car was my wish to surprise you. And now you distort my motive."

"How many wives do you suppose would enjoy such a surprise? For three months you and another woman have been using MY surprise. You have a peculiar idea of what pleases a woman."

"Come, Jane," I urged, "try to be reasonable. 'Don't you think I am—have been all along as complacent as most wives would be? Now that I understand all about the car I will go to bed,' not waiting for an answer to her question."

After she left me I sat for some little time thinking the matter over, trying to see her point of view, but could not feel that she had cause for complaint. I only thought myself stupid for telling Jane anything of Miss Reese's part in selecting the car.

I wonder now, long afterward, what I would have said or done had Jane done with Hemming exactly as I had with Miss Reese. Yet at the time I only thought her silly and foolishly childish.

Ages Too Late. THE next morning I asked Jane to ride down to the hospital with me. She refused, saying:

"Think of taking Miss Reese's place! Fiddlisticks, Jane! Miss Reese has work to do and has to stay in the office. Besides she won't expect to go in the car so often, now that you are home."

"I wouldn't have you change your plans for the world. And so that was the reason you asked me to go out this morning? SHE was busy and couldn't go."

"What's the matter, Jane? Are you jealous?" I blurted out. "No, I don't think I am jealous, George. I don't think I ever have been jealous of you."

"What is thunder is it, then?" "I may be jealous," Jane continued, paying no attention to my outburst, "but

SOME NEW RECIPES.

French Croutons—Put 1 cup boiling water, 2 level tablespoons of sugar, a grating of orange rind and ¼ cup butter over the fire; when boiling sift in 1 cup of sifted pastry flour and stir and cook to a smooth ball or paste; turn into an earthen dish or bowl and beat in one after another 3 eggs. Beat the mixture smooth between each addition of an egg. Drop from a tablespoon, in as smooth shape as possible, into hot fat, turn often and cook until well puffed up and browned. Drain on soft paper.

Cucumber Jelly Salad—Pare and grate 4 large cucumbers, add ½ cups of boiling water, 12 peppercorns, 1 teaspoon of chopped onion and scant ¼ teaspoon of salt; let simmer 30 minutes, add 1-3 box of gelatin softened in ½ cup of cold water; stir until dissolved, then strain through a double thickness of cheesecloth. Line a mold with slices of fresh cucumber, fill with the jelly when it begins to thicken and let harden on ice. Unmold and serve on a bed of watercress.

Sausage Bundles—Roll out plain paste in six-inch squares, rather thin. Cut frankfurters in thin slices, rejecting the skin, and lay the slices in two rows in the center of the piece of paste; double, pinch ends together and tuck the edges to make them stick; then set away on ice until ready to bake. Bake in hot oven 15 minutes and serve hot with French or German mustard.

Salmon and Green Peas—Take fresh salmon and sew into clean white cloth and boil. Make a white sauce of 2 level tablespoons of flour, 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 cup hot milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper. Cook till it thickens and serve with salmon and boiled peas.

THE grand canal at Venice, one-time home of moonlight, gondolas and romance, is said now to be cluttered with torpedo boats and cruisers. It was through a war that drove the people to seek refuge on those many islands that Venice came to be established.

Simple Hints for Swimmers

ONE branch of swimming often neglected, even by those proficient in the art, is swimming on the back. It is not only highly desirable as helping to bring used muscles into activity, but its utility is often greater than the more usual swimming methods. Those who have an ambition to shine as long distance swimmers, or who go into the water alone, should by all means learn to swim on the back. When exhausted or attacked by cramps the ability to turn over and rest comfortably on the back may often be the means of saving life.

One may begin to learn the back stroke while stretched safely on a bed or couch, or on the floor. Lie flat on the back, with the arms, parallel to each other, stretched back above the head and the hands touching each other, fingers closed and palms upward, while the legs, close together, are also extended fully, with toes slanting downward.

Having assumed this position, you are ready to start the stroke. First turn the palms of the hands outward, so that the backs of the hands touch each other. Bring them downward, even with the body, in a wide curve to the legs. Keep the arms straight and do not crook the elbow. As the hands touch the thighs, the legs, which have been left straight, get into action.

With heels together, bend the knees outward and upward, and then kick smartly, with the feet wide apart. As the concluding leg movement, bring the legs quickly together. Simultaneously with the leg stroke, the hands, back up, are brought back in a wide sweep of the arms to the starting point. Hands and legs should reach the original position at exactly the same time.

When you go into the water the best plan is to begin by learning to float on the back. Have the teacher or companion hold you at first. Let this assistance be gradually withdrawn, and you will soon discover, much to your surprise, that water is much heavier than you thought, and quite capable of supporting you if you use the only effective exercise it is likely to add to your years, as well as providing excellent sport.

The Drowning Season On

THIS is the season for rescuing beautiful girls from the water. In order that it may be efficiently done, the following suggestions will be found of service.

After selecting the most beautiful girl in the hotel, call on her a few days beforehand and notify her that you intend to rescue her. This will give her time to make necessary arrangements, and, when photographed after the rescue, to have on her nearly lifeless and dripping form the right kind of clothes.

See her father also and make all the necessary arrangements with him to be taken into the firm, the furnishing of the cottage after the wedding trip, etc.

One final word: Do not select a girl who swims too well. Just at the moment when you have reached her and are feeling a trifle spent yourself, it would be extremely awkward to have her turn about and rescue you. If you married her then, you might end your days as a suffragette—Life.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
 By Roy L. McCardell

Mrs. Jarr Makes a "Friendly" Call and Takes the Children With Her.

"So glad to see you, my dear! So sweet of you to come! And how perfectly lovely of you to bring the dear children!" gushed Mrs. Stryver.

"It was such a nice day I thought I'd run in to see you and bring the children before you went away for the summer," said Mrs. Jarr. "Willie! Take your feet down off that sofa!"

"They are such darlings!" said Mrs. Stryver, but nervously eyeing the little girl, who was reaching for a marble statuette on a table nearby.

"Don't touch that, Emma!" warned her mother, seeing the appealing look in Mrs. Stryver's eye.

"Where's the dolly's dress?" asked the little girl.

"It isn't a dolly, pet; it's an ornament," said Mrs. Jarr, with a mental reservation that nude figures were not proper things in the home, especially where children could see them.

"Don't scold the little dear," said Mrs. Stryver sweetly. "How was she to know?" This implied that objects of art were an unknown quantity in the humble home of the Jarrs.

"We are Puritans, I must confess," said Mrs. Jarr blandly. "The old Mayflower instinct is still strong with us."

It was whispered that Mrs. Stryver's parents had come over—not in the Mayflower, but in a modern steamship—in the steerage. Mrs. Stryver instinctively felt this was an indirect reference to the fact.

"Your children are looking well," said the hostess, thinking it best to change the subject. "Isn't it wonderful how well they keep in health—children, I mean—being cooped up in tenement houses and the like?"

"Oh, well," said Mrs. Jarr, "I couldn't answer that, you know. Of course, our apartments are modest, but they are light and airy and very cool, all things considered. But, then, we pay a terrible rent, too; and if one has the luxury of children—Willie, stop kicking that sofa—one must deny one's self other comforts."

"Mamma, why is the lady's face so red?" asked the little girl, and why is her hair so yellow?"

Mrs. Jarr's reply was a resounding slap.

"I never saw such an observant child," she said in an aside to the winning Mrs. Stryver. "Of course, she is not used to seeing rouge, you know."

"Has the little boy any nervous affection?" asked Mrs. Stryver, biting her lips.

The boy in question was writhing in the greatest delight and "making faces" at his sister in the after joy of seeing her slapped. Mrs. Jarr gave him a slap for himself that stopped the pantomime and started him screaming with his sister.

"Well, we must go now," said Mrs. Jarr. "I suppose you will be going to the seashore again this summer?"

This was another sting. The Stryvers had endeavored to "get in" at this particular seashore, but had been serenely ignored.

"I'd just as leave think of going camp-

HOW about paying me for that suit I made for you two years ago?" asked the tailor.

"You surely can't expect me to pay for that suit," said the impatient young man. "Why, it's all out of style."

"ing," said Mrs. Stryver. This was a hit at the Jarrs. They DID go camping.

"Well, good-by, dear!" said Mrs. Jarr. "Willie and Emma, say good-by to Mrs. Stryver."

As she went out Mrs. Jarr said to herself, "Poor woman, with no children!"

Mrs. Stryver's mental comment was: "Poor woman, with THOSE children!"

LUCILE THE WAITRESS

"Did you ever notice," asked Lucile, the waitress in the small restaurant, "that almost every girl you meet wants to be a film actress?"

"Can't say that I have," replied the friendly customer.

"Well, it's true. This mornin' the blonde at the pie counter comes to work all smiles. 'An' why the suppressed merriment?' I asks. 'It's came at last,' she replies. 'I'm goin' to be a picture star.'"

"Listen, Maggie, I says, 'you better stick to pies. Somebody's been kiddin' you. They's a difference, you know, between shakin' a pineapple pie an' foolin' the villain in a film.'"

"She tells me that's all I know about it. 'I got a gentleman friend,' she says, 'who's got a friend who is a film producer, an' he's strong for Maggie. He says I look like Clarence Kennedy Young. Now what d'you know about that?'"

"I seen it was time to interpose them. 'Ladies,' I says, 'whoa a bit. Remember, this ain't no place for a film argument.' Then I turns to Maggie. 'Who's yer gentleman friend?' I asks. 'His name's Peeler,' she says. 'Aw, he's no friend of yours,' chirps in Julie. 'He's my friend an' he's goin' to make me a film actress at $1000 a week.'"

"It was just as I suspected, kid. They both had been fooled by the same guy. He comes in here once in a while an' talks loud an' long. He's a counter jumper in one-man haberdashery. Them two girls was about to fight, when I says, 'Now, listen, ladies! One of you is a good pie distributor an' the other has flung the dishrag around here for six months with honor. You oughtn't to fall out over that guy Peeler. Now drop the picture idea for the omniscient and let's have peace in the pie and dishwashing departments.'"

"I will not," says Maggie.

"Neither will I," says Julie.

"I seen it was a place for humor to pacify them. 'Listen, girls,' I says, 'one of the greatest film actors on earth - Jess Hobbs - has joined Barnum & Bailey. Now it would seem -'"

"Jess Hobbs is dead," they both chirps.

"So's Barnum & Bailey," I answers.

"Well, sir, it floored 'em. They went back to work as meek as two mice.

"Picture acting seems to be a craze," suggested the friendly customer.

Lucile grew serious. Say, kid," she said, "drop in the haberdashery down the street a block an' have a chat with Peter. Let me know how deep you think he is."

"Well, confidently, he's been makin' the same spiel to me. If he has got that producer friend, I might get to be a film star, myself."

Strictly Apropos.

THE weather man! The weather man! He surely is a beauty. Since time began he never has been able all to suit. It's always much too cold for us, Or else it's far too hot. Oh weather man! Oh weather man! It sure has rained a lot!
